Be Thankful We're OUT Two Dead Soldiers. How Would They Vote? That World-Wide Job

By Arthur Brisbane

Copyright, 1920.

Warsaw is doomed. Russia refuses an armistice, stocks go tumbling, France will send men against Russia. England will "help" on the sea with a blockade. Once more poor France carries the heavy load. It is to her that Russia owes thirty billions of francs.

Be grateful that the United States is still out of the peace league. If we were in it this country would be carrying the load.

Last Sunday two war veterans in Pittsburgh took an important step.

On that day they both hanged themselves with their belts. Both were gassed in the war, both are dead and now out of any further trouble.

If those men had lived until next November they probably would have told young Americans NOT yet gassed, and their fathers and mothers, that it would be a good idea to have the United States decide about drafting Americans for service in Europe and not leave that decision to any peace league or combination of European nations.

Give to our friends in Europe the right to conscript young Americans for war in order to save their own young men, and you will have the Pittsburgh incident repeated many times in years to come.

There seems to be basis for Mr. Cox's statement that the United States "has duties in EVERY PART OF THE WORLD."

A while ago, without any right or authority of Congress, Americans were being shot in Russia, this government attempting to prove to the Russians that they haven't a right to manage their own country.

Now we are telling the Japanese what they must do in the Island of Saghalin.

That island is a long way from Coney Island. It is close to Japan, one part of it to Japanese, the other part Russian. The U. S. A. told Japan to get out of the Russian part.

Exactly what business it is of the United States what the Japanese and Russians do in Saghalin the average American does not understand.

And nobody, not even this administration, understands why we are telling the Russian government that they haven't a right to rule in their own country, and at the same time telling the Japanese that they must not interfere with the supremacy of the Russian government in a little island that doesn't concern us.

The desperate situation of Poland is shown in the dispatch about sending Warsaw's entire police force, one thousand men, armed with English rifles, to help stop the Russian army. Two hundred millions of people and a great revolution are back of the Russian army. Sending out a thousand policemen seems like an international limitation of Mrs. Partington.

The Poles have fought desperately, with extraordinary courage, their army has been cut down three-quarters. Defeat rests, not on them, but on the Allies that first gave Poland her independence and then sent her on an impossible catspaw expedition against Russia to collect debts for the Allies.

For all the Polish dead the Allies are responsible. Poland might prosper and be independent, free from the conquest that menaces her, had she not been chosen to collect loans made to the Czar that Lenin would not pay.

What is sauce for the German goose is, according to Lenin, sauce for the Polish gander. Russia will cease the war against Poland if Poland will accept her terms, including reduction of Poland's armed forces.

Russia is saving to Poland what the Allies said to Germany, "You may have peace if you will make yourself so weak that I can beat you whenever I want to."

Candidate Cox says, in connection with the peace league suggestion, "America is at stake."

It is, indeed, at stake, the future of the whole country, the future of millions of American young men and billions of dollars.

If we were in the peace league this country would be shipping young men to fight against Russia NOW, and THEIR future and THEIR lives would be at stake NOW.

Any man that votes for the peace league votes to risk of this country, its men and money, a stake with which European nations can gamble as they please.

It was said that the Greeks, who have come to life in their old-fashioned manner under the leadership of Venizelos, would take and possess Constantinople. But what Mr. Venizelos says "NO." Holding Constantinople, the Greeks would hold a large share of all the trouble in the world. They would have Asia on the east, the Balkans to the west, Russia to the north, the British fleet to the south—trouble everywhere.

To hold Constantinople is to play the part of Russia's jailer. Venizelos is too wise to accept that job at present.

75,000 GET HIGHER WAGES

Labor Board Grants Advance of 16 Per Cent. to All Express Employes

By International News Service.

Chicago, Aug. 10.—Increases in wages to employes of the American Railway Express Company, which will total approximately $30,000,000 a year, were announced by the Railway Labor Board here today. About 75,000 persons will participate in the awards.

The increase is a flat addition of 16 cents an hour to the pay of all classes of employes who came under the heading of "employes and subordinate officials" within the meaning of the transportation act. The unions had demanded 25 cents an hour increase.

Union officials waiting in Chicago for the announcement of the award declared after preliminary examination of the announcement that the award would be adopted for the present at least. It will later be submitted through a referendum to the membership of the four organizations affected.

The four unions affected are the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, Freight Handlers, Express and Station Employes, the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Stable Men and Helpers of America, the Railway Express Drivers, Chauffeurs

THREAT TO GERMANY BY ALLIES

To Advance From Rhine If Necessary to Protect Pole From Russian-Teuton Plot

By International News Service.

Paris, Aug. 10.—The allies have formally assured Poland that, if the Minsk armistice negotiations reveal an agreement between Soviet Russia and Germany, by which Germany get territory guaranteed to Poland by the Versailles treaty, the allies will advance from the Rhine to force Germany to respect the peace treaty, it was learned at the French Foreign Office this afternoon.

It is admitted in semi-official circles that a blockade would be without value if commerce was flowing between Russia and Germany.

Russian cavalry is approaching Warsaw along the Warsaw-Danzig railway with the Russian infantry 12 miles in the rear, said Warsaw advices to the Foreign Office telling of the present military situation.

Russian cavalry and infantry are rapidly concentrating for an attack upon Radzymin, the northern gateway to Warsaw, says a Berlin dispatch. Radzymin is fifteen miles north of the Polish capital and lies at

Threatens Mandamus on Lawyer's Nose

New York, Aug. 10—Threatened with mandamus proceedings to compel early decisions of rent cases, postponed until Fall because of the heat, Judge Morris in the Second Municipal court replied to an attorney:

"I'll mandamus you in the nose. I propose to protect the interests of rent payers. It is too hot to turn them out in the Summer and too cold in Winter."

TURKISH PEACE TREATY SIGNED

Serbs Refuse to Take Part in Ceremony; U. S. Not Represented

By International News Service.

Paris, Aug. 10.—The Turkish peace treaty was signed at Sevres, four miles northeast of Versailles. This was the last treaty growing out of the World War.

Serbia refused to sign on account of dissatisfaction over the allotment of the Turkish debt.

The decision to get the Turkish treaty out of the way today came unexpected, for it had previously been stated that "on account of the chaotic condition of affairs in the Near East," the signing of the treaty would be postponed.

The United States was not represented at the signature ceremonies, as America had never formally declared war against Turkey.

DEBATE IN CORRIDOR CASE COURT FILED

A sensation was caused in the corridor of the South Boston Municipal Court today when Representative William H. McDonald and Patrolman Michael McEllin engaged in an argument concerning the merits of a case in which McDonald acted as attorney for the defendant and McEllin was the prosecutor. The case, against Patrick Murphy, twenty years of age, who was found guilty of using improper language, has been filed. In the corridor McEllin was stopped from talking with the defendant by McDonald. The patrolman resented the interference.

DIES AFTER 53 YEARS ON STAGE

James O'Neil, Who Passed Away at New London, Won Fame as 'Monte Cristo'

New London, Aug. 10.—James O'Neil, whose nightly triumphs as Edmond Dantes in "Monte Cristo," will be remembered as long as memories of the American theatre of the past two generations survive, died early today in the Lawrence Memorial Hospital here in his seventy-third year.

Mrs. O'Neil and their sons, James and Eugene, were with him at the end.

Before the boom in motion pictures came along, twelve or fifteen years ago, to make ten theatres blossom where before there was but one—and show the manager of the opera house where he could "pack them in" several times a day instead of taking a chance three times a week—James O'Neil was almost a yearly visitor to every city of importance in Nef England.

O'Neil had all the gifts, voice, presence, magnetism. He played "Monte Cristo" for twenty years, not because he lacked versatility, but because his public demanded it.

When the old play was sent to the storehouse some time ago O'Neil played short engagements from time to time to keep his hand in. He was

R. R. WATCHMAN VANISHES

John Cunniff's Disappearance Alarms Family; Mystery in Message of "Death"

John Cunniff, a watchman employed at East Cambridge by the Boston & Maine Railroad, pulled a signal at 9:15 o'clock last night from one of his out-of-doors boxes and disappeared as completely as if the ground had swallowed him.

Cunniff, fifty-eight years old, resided with his family at No. 54 Richardson street, Winchester. His railroad job in East Cambridge called for the regular patrol of yards and freight houses. The record of his scheduled visits to one box after another were perforated on paper rolls.

Early today the missing watchman's keys and lantern were found close by the last box he pulled.

Alarm was felt by members of the watchman's family when he failed to appear for breakfast at the usual hour. One hour later Mrs. Cunniff was called to a nearby telephone. "I just wanted to tell you," a strange male voice told her, "that John Cunniff is dead." Then the speaker hung up and was gone.

URGES INVESTORS TO IGNORE ALLEN

Charles Ponzi today urged his noteholders to refrain from giving any information regarding their notes, in defiance of a request by Attorney-General Allen, who, in newspaper advertisements, requested that such data be furnished him.

Ponzi declared that this information concerned only himself and the noteholders, and that no relief or benefit from the present situation was to be expected or derived from State officials.

Referring to a statement by Bank Commissioner Joseph C. Allen, that he had only one account in the Hanover Trust Company, Ponzi said he had no hesitancy in characterizing it as a falsehood.

For the first time since the run started on the so-called "mystery financier," no money was paid out today on matured or unmatured notes, and Ponzi failed to visit his office on School street.

PONZI "TAKES VACATION."

Declaring that the authorities had fenced him up, despite his desire to continue payments, Ponzi said that he would take a vacation until Friday, and the public must suffer in consequence. He made no effort to secure cash for payments from some of the other institutions in which he claimed to have securities.

"Why should I sacrifice my securities?" he asked. "They closed me up and now it is up to them."

Ponzi said a final conference would be held at the Federal Building on Friday, at which time Auditor Finds would complete his report. Ponzi asserted he then would prove his solvency, and would reopen for business Saturday or Monday.

SOME CHECKING ACCOUNT."

In his statement regarding Ponzi's accounts at the Hanover Trust Company, the bank commissioner said:

"Mr. Ponzi either does not know just what his financial status is or else he is attempting to misrepresent it. He intimates in a statement in the press that he has two checking accounts in the bank and that we refused to allow him to transfer funds from one to the other. That is not the terminus of a short railway line running north from Warsaw. The correspondent reported that the Russians were slowing down their advance.

Premier Millerand, who returned from Hythe, England, where he conferred with Premier Lloyd George, announced the question of French mobilization for war on Russia was not mentioned.

"It would be stupid to consider such a thing," said the premier.

Premier Millerand, who conferred throughout the morning with the heads of the French government, He will meet the full French cabinet to make a detailed report tomorrow.

"I am unable to discuss the results of the Hythe conference until after Premier Lloyd George has made his announcement to the British House of Commons," continued the premier. "But at all events the Versailles treaty guaranteeing Polish independence will be upheld."

According to the Petit Journal the allies will favor the enrollment of former allied soldiers in the Polish army as volunteers.

The allies are particularly anxious to bolster up the air and artillery branches of the Polish army.

NO APPEAL TO LEAGUE.

Great Britain and France have decided not to appeal to the League of Nations in behalf of Poland on account of the inability of the league of Nations to take any decisive action.

"The American note," which the foreign office announced was being received from Washington, has developed into a mystery. The government has refused to give out the text or make any comment, while press cablegrams from Washington said that no note had been sent.

"The United States takes sides against Poland," was the headline used by the Matin upon its story of the note.

AID FOR WRANGEL.

"The allies will ask the Scandinavian countries and Germany to join in a new blockade of Russia," said a Hythe dispatch to the Petit Parisien. "The allies also will ask the Scandinavian states and all the border Russian states to recognize Wrangel as the legal representative of the Russian empire to establish a defensive front." If the Russians cross the Warsaw-Danzig corridor the allies will send aid to General Wrangel, commander-in-chief of the Russian army in southern Russia. Munitions can be sent through Czechoslovakia.

According to the Matin, M. Kamenef, head of the Bolshevik trade commission, has confirmed in writing the offer of the Soviet government to recognize the Russian national debt if the Russian government is recognized. This newspaper suggests taking over the Russian railways as a guarantee.

The German embassy denies that it has received any offers of help or any troops to the allies to fight the Russian Soviet army. The German diplomatic here contend that Germany will maintain neutrality in the war between Russia and Poland.

Judge Fisher Says Reds Aim to Crush Jews

New York, Aug. 10.—The Soviet Russian government is determined to crush the religious, cultural and trade interests of the Jews in Russia, although they have extended to the Jews political and moral privileges and protection not given any group, which did not exist under the old Russian regime, declared Judge Harry M. Fisher of Chicago, here today.

Judge Fisher, representing the joint distribution committee of America, made the statement when he returned this week from a three months' tour of Russia and the Balkan States. There he had a comprehensive survey of conditions affecting the Jews.

"While political and moral equality has been accorded the Jews in Russia," Judge Fisher stated, "communism, as it now is practiced, will destroy those ideals which have kept the Jews as a separate people throughout the centuries.

"Zionists who are representatives of the nationalism element constitute the majority of Russian Jews, have been declared by the government to be counter revolutionists and every effort is being made by persecution and intimidation, to annihilate that organization.

"Kehilles, democratically elected councils of Jews which represented religious and trade interests, separatism have been declared illegal and suppressed by the government. With them went every hope of the Jews establishing their minority autonomist life in Eastern Europe, for which they have so bitterly struggled.

"On the other hand, the Soviet government has taken certain measures to prevent anti-semetic demonstrations and has succeeded in securing safety of the Jews against pogroms. Much has been done by the government, by way of financial assistance, to alleviate the sufferings of pogrom victims in which instance may be said to be all the Jews of Ukrainia."

Germans Admit Seeking Russian Trade Pact

Berlin, Aug. 10.—Admission was made in semi-official circles here that many is seeking a commercial treaty with Soviet Russia. Terms proposed by the German government are said to be under consideration by Moscow at present. They were taken to Moscow by Victor Kopp, representative of the Russian Bolshevik government in Germany.

HIGHER PAY FOR EXPRESSMEN

Advance of 10 Per Cent. Granted to 75,000 Employes by Labor Board

and Conductors Local No. 220, Chicago, and the Order of Railway Expressmen, Chicago.

ADVANCE RETROACTIVE.

The increases are effective as of May 1, 1920, and are to be paid to all who were in the service at that time, but in the case of those who entered the service since that date van collect as from the date of their employment.

The classes of employes affected are listed as follows:

1—Agents, storekeepers, assistant storekeepers, chief clerks, foremen, sub-foremen and other supervisory forces.

2—Clerks.

3—Wagon, automobile, stable, garage and platform service employes.

4—Messengers and helpers, including handling baggage and helpers, guards and other train service employes.

5—All other employes except those coming under the provisions of the agreement between the United States Railroad Administration and the Federated Shop Crafts, dated September 20, 1919.

The increases will become incorporated in and part of existing agreements and schedules.

TO ADJUST DISPUTES.

The award further provides that should a dispute arise between the management and the employes of a carrier as to the meaning or intent of the decision, which cannot be decided in conference between the parties directly interested, such dispute shall be referred to the United States Railroad Labor Board as provided in the transportation act.

The award is signed by Judge R. M. Barton, chairman of the board.

J. H. Abbott, vice-president of the International Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, Freight Handlers, Express and Station Employes, declared he was well pleased with the award.

"It is a relatively better award than that given the railroad employes," said Abbott, "although it does not bring the wages of express employes up to the standard mandated. One feature that may cause discussion is that it gives station employes a 204-hour month and the railroad employes a 240-hour month. I think, however, it will be accepted without protest."

VOTE TO CONTINUE PAWTUCKET STRIKE

Pawtucket, R. I., Aug. 10.—Because Howard A. Bullough's American Machine Company officials refused to let him intervene John J. S. Two more ships are expected from the tropics before the end of the week, bringing total receipts of bananas for seven days up to about 100,000 bunches.

Finds 'Growing Pains' Afflict Country

That the country is suffering from growing pains was evidenced by social and industrial problems causing unrest, is the opinion of Rev. Earl C. Davis of Lancaster, Pa., one of 103 clergymen brought to Cambridge by the Unitarian Laymen's League to help on the Unitarian campaign this Fall.

"There is an undercurrent today in the life of the country which is perfectly splendid," said Dr. Davis.

"New ideas are coming up which have to be tested. We can't prejudge them. They can't be stamped out. All this ferment is not the result of propaganda. Fundamental forces are at work. It is part of the spirit of evolution and progress. The church must recognize this.

"When a malarious disease comes to our attention, we call in the specialist. That is what the liberal church must do. It will find that the workingman is not much different from any other man. In fact, he is more conservative. He is a conservative. His attitude toward life is about the same as yours and mine. He is a feeling ghost for expression."

FOURTH OF BOND LIQUOR GONE

15,000,000 Gallons Freed From Warehouses—'Drys' Charge Steady Sale

Washington, Aug. 10.—Anti-liquor forces here charged that a steady sale of liquor is daily going on throughout the country, and that the traffic is made possible largely because responsibility for the enforcement of the Volstead act is divided between Federal and State officials.

A nation-wide enforcement campaign will be undertaken shortly, anti-saloon leaders announced.

Out of the 60,000,000 to 70,000,000 gallons of liquor in bonded warehouses on July 1, last year, over 15,000,000 gallons found its way out by July 1 last year it is claimed, or about one fourth of the entire stock.

The trouble with the enforcement of the prohibition amendment and the Volstead act is that neither the State nor Federal officials have been willing to resume full responsibility, John F. Dinwiddie, executive secretary of the Anti-Saloon League, declared. "I have not found much drunkenness since the passage of the prohibition act, but we have to admit that liquor is being sold, and it should not be the case.

"The Anti-Saloon League is going to be active in the campaign which will, in the end, force some one to assume the task of enforcing the law to the letter," he said. "I believe the people of each community are best fitted to carry such a campaign through. I know that during the national convention I saw but two cases of drunkenness.

Prohibition Commissioner Kramer admitted liquor is being sold illegally in the large cities, but denied it was being sold in large quantities.

'DUKE DE NEVERS,' WHO SERVED TIME HERE, TO WED AGAIN

WANTS TO REMARRY BRIDE

United to Cambridge Girl in France, Will Have Ceremony Performed in U. S.

Phillipe de Clamecy, who while posing as the Duke de Nevers, served a term in the State Prison at Charlestown for forgery, and was divorced by his young wife at that time, is again seeking to enter the bonds of matrimony, according to dispatches from Providence.

De Clamecy, who at the time of his sentence, from six to ten years, in 1912, was fifty-three years old, is seeking permission to marry Miss Marion Beaumesnil, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Beaumeister, of Rockwell street, Cambridge, who is twenty years old.

In securing a marriage license at Providence, the couple told the clerk that they were married some time ago in France, but that it was the young woman's desire they be married on American soil by an American clergyman.

ON DIPLOMATIC MISSION."

Registering at the Narragansett as General Phillipe de Clamecy of No. 148 Des Champs Elysee, Paris, the man now posed as a duke declared that he was in America on a diplomatic mission. The couple refused to discuss their plans or state by whom the ceremony would be performed. Under the Rhode Island law they have to wait five days.

The parents of the young woman said that she was married to General de Clamecy in New York last February, and has been living with them since. She left home last Saturday, but her family did not know where she was going. They said their daughter had met the General in Boston last Winter and that they intended to sail for France next September. Neighbors say Miss Beaumesnil worked in the factory of the Library Bureau in Cambridge. This was denied by the parents.

Years ago Phillipe de Clamecy posed as a consulting engineer and married his stepdaughter, Miss Anna Birenbach, who was many years his junior. In 1916 a baby boy was born and before he was three months old his mother discovered that his father was a swindler. She immediately left him and secured a divorce two years later.

In June of 1919 de Clamecy came to Boston and again posed as the Duke de Nevers. He engaged a suite in the Touraine, and claiming to be a judge in France was invited to sit on the bench by Judge Burke of the Municipal Court. He called on Mayor Fitzgerald at City Hall, and was taken to visit Deer Island on the Monitor.

The "Duke" was eventually arrested for passing bad checks on the Touraine, and sentenced to from six to ten years at hard labor by Judge Sanderson as a "common and notorious thief."

INVENTS MACHINE TO PREVENT FILM FIRES

Edward Morway, of No. 278 Chestnut street, Lawrence, has perfected a machine which, he says, will make it impossible for motion picture films to take fire. Morway, a motion picture operator in Haverhill, took his plans to R. J. Jacobs of New York, a motion picture authority. Jacobs has just notified Morway that he is convinced the invention will prevent fires, and that he has arranged for tests August 25. "If the tests are successful the invention will mark a long step forward in moving pictures," says Jacobs.

Miss Marcia Taylor, whose engagement to Oswald Kunhardt has just been announced. Kunhardt, who was German and Austrian Consul-General in Boston, was interned in 1918. Upon his release he entered business in New York and took steps to become an American citizen. Miss Taylor is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Taylor of the North Shore and Back Bay. Photo by Ye Craftsman Studio.

Oswald Kunhardt, one-time German and Austrian consul-general at Boston, who was arrested in 1918 as a dangerous alien enemy, is to marry Miss Marcia Taylor, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Taylor of Boston and Manchester-by-the-Sea. Kunhardt, following his arrest, was interned at the United States enemy alien barracks at Chickamauga Park, Georgia.

At the time of his arrest at the fashionable North Shore resort a sensation was created. Miss Taylor, who was then reported engaged to him, announced her determination to marry him once the war was over and Kunhardt restored to good standing. He moved in the best social circles, was a member of the Essex County Club at Manchester and the Country Club of Brookline. Following his release from the camp Kunhardt took up business in New York and announced his intention of becoming an American citizen.

WANT CITY TO BUILD HOUSES

Council Asks Mayor to Expend $15,000,000 to Relieve Shortage

Action toward relieving the serious housing shortage in Boston was taken by the City Council, which calls upon Mayor Peters to take immediate steps under Chapter 584 of the Acts of 1920 to provide Boston citizens with a sufficient number of homes at the city's expense. It was declared that the situation constituted a public emergency.

Under this act the city could expend nearly $15,000,000 outside the debt limit for land and buildings.

FEARS WORSE SITUATION.

Councilman Hagan declared that although the present housing situation was acute he feared conditions would become worse upon the return of vacationists to the city.

The council also voted unanimously to accept the legislative act of 1917 providing for the development of Park square, permitting the widening and extension of Stuart street. The act provides for a new wide artery for traffic into the city by the construction of Stuart street, from Eliot street to Huntington avenue and the relocation and reconstruction of Eliot street, from Washington to Pleasant streets.

The Mayor sent five vetoes to the council one of which was the council's proposed loan order of $150,000 for the installation of a sprinkler system in the Long Island Hospital. The council had substituted this for the proposal of the Mayor to transfer this sum from the $400,000 previously appropriated for a new ferryboat for East Boston.

REFUSES NEW FERRYBOAT.

The Mayor gave two reasons for this veto. One was that "the $400,000 which [illegible]er be spent while I am Mayor for a ferryboat, as East Boston does not need the third new boat." His second reason was that it is a "most shortsighted policy to have the city go out in the present time when interests rate are so high and borrow a sum which it already has in the treasury."

In view of this decisive stand taken by the Mayor on the ferryboat appropriation, it was agreed that Councilman McLaughlin, as chairman of the committee on finance, should confer with the Mayor this week with a view of breaking the deadlock.

THREE OTHER VETOES.

The other vetoes of the Mayor were as follows: The proposed ordinance to close City Hall at 12 o'clock noon on Saturdays throughout the year; the proposed appropriation of $1,500 for clerical assistance in the office of the clerk of the Municipal Court; and the order to give the name of Thomas J. Connolly square to the junction of Columbia avenue and Tremont street.

RICH GEMS ON RIVER VICTIM

Body of Expensively Clad Young Woman Is Found Near Detroit

By International News Service.

Detroit, Aug. 10.—Detroit police and river and county authorities today were confronted with another "woman in death mystery" in the finding of the body of a well dressed and diamond bedecked woman in the Detroit river opposite Wyandotte.

The woman was about 25 years old, 5 feet 6 inches in height and weighed about 115 pounds. She was clad in a black satin dress, high tan shoes and fine quality silk undergarments. On her hand she wore a diamond solitaire ring, estimated to be worth $1,500, and a plain band wedding ring, while on the right hand was a platinum ring set with diamonds. Other jewelry comprised a gold bracelet, set earrings and a necklace of jet beads.

The body had been in the water about two hours. There were no marks or discolorations which would indicate foul play, and the police are working on the theory that the woman may have fallen or jumped into the river from a passing steamship. No steamship company operating out of this city has a record of a missing passenger.

Neither is there record of any person answering the dead woman's description being reported missing from Detroit or nearby towns.

Ponzi Tells How He Discovered Riches

Charles Ponzi, "mystery man of finance," in another article written especially for the Boston American tells of his arrival in Pittsburgh with only $2.50 in his pockets, of his efforts to find work, his desire to return to Italy, how he saved the life of a hospital nurse, of his brief courtship and marriage, and how finally he hit upon the plan by which he claims to have amassed millions. The article follows.

By CHARLES PONZI

To think of those early days in Pittsburgh makes me shudder.

I left Italy with enough money to take care of me until I could find work but I arrived in that city with but $2.50. On the steamer coming over the gambling fever, which had played such havoc with me during my college days, got the better of me.

I could not keep away from it. I lost every cent of the money I owned with the exception of this paltry $2.50.

I still had the idea that America was paved with gold and that I would be wealthy in no time. But I was soon to see my hopeful dreams destroyed. I had not been in Pittsburgh a day before I wished that I had never left Italy. For the first time I began to regret these wasted days in Rome.

NEW FRIENDS FIND HIM JOB.

Finally I drifted to the only people who could understand me—my countrymen. I hired a room in a boardinghouse in the Italian colony and set out to make friends with the rest of the boarders. I was a newcomer and, of course, I occasioned more or less interest among them. There seemed to be a comradeship among them which extended to me the instant they knew I had no funds. They promised to find a job for me.

The next day I had many jobs to choose from. Work! Work! I was a university man. My hands had never been soiled by work, and these countrymen, each eager to help me and confident that he had succeeded in finding the employment I wanted, told me of the work he had found for me. I cried inwardly.

Those big-hearted fellows, workers in the steel mills and street laborers, had gone to their bosses and had told them of a new Italian come ready for work. They rushed home to tell me of their good fortune. They fought each other good naturedly to have the honor of procuring a job for me. But I refused them all.

It was physically impossible for me to swing a pick. I abhorred the thought of heavy work and the grind of a steel mill and as I told them one by one that I hoped to find a lighter and more profitable employment I could see that they were beginning to lose faith in me.

BEGAN TO HATE AMERICA.

Day by day I trudged through the Italian section trying to get any kind of work that was light. I went into the Italian banks that I could get a position as clerk. I tried the Italian banks and the employment agencies. Everywhere I met the same story—why didn't I go to work in the steel mills. Oh, how I began to hate America! I was angry at the fact that the blame was with me and not with anybody or anything else.

Then, finally, I got a job in a grocery store. The wages were barely sufficient to provide food and a shelter. And such food! Not the fine Italian cooking that I had been used to at home, but delicate and dainty petiting dishes of the Bohemian resorts which I had frequented during my university days. It was a diet of plain and unappetizing food.

I began to pick up a few words of English. I noticed that if I could master the language of the country in which I was living I could escape from the Italian colony and perhaps procure a position which I considered beneath me. But I could have no hope for this vague hope I never could have allowed my heart sinking despondency.

While I was working in the grocery store I kept my eyes open for a more profitable job. One day I heard of a vacancy in a macaroni factory in the suburbs. I managed to get it and while it offered but a small advance in salary I could have gotten it without effort by writing home, but my pride would not allow me.

I saved enough funds to get me to New York. That city seemed to me thousands of miles nearer Italy, and as I stepped off the train at the Pennsylvania station I knew that I felt a heavy load off my shoulder. My knowledge of English was growing day by day. I had not satisfied myself by picking up the language verbally from among my countrymen, but I had enrolled myself with English and Italian grammars and, thanks to my university education and my fluency with French, I was finding English a comparative easy language to learn.

But any optimistic conceptions I had of New York were soon dispelled. There was to be no easy path to independency was. There I experienced the most abject destitution I feared what it was to be penniless, hungry and friendless, and to sleep on a park bench in the Battery with the most homeless persons on God's earth—the flotsam and jetsam of a metropolis.

WASHED DISHES IN CAFE.

I floated from one end of the city to another. I did any work I could get. I pressed clothes in a tailoring shop; I was a waiter in a cheap restaurant; for a time I washed dishes, and in fact I did a thousand and one things trying to find what I could do to earn enough to keep body and soul together.

I had never written home. My mother had become worried and had written to the Italian consul to find me and it was, perhaps, as a result of that letter and a meeting with the consul which started me on the mission which must for the present remain a secret.

From New York I went to Providence. Within the next few years I visited the underworld of every large city in this country and Canada. I know every nook and corner of Canada, so thorough was my investigations.

GAVE SKIN TO AID NURSE.

In Brockton, Alabama, I worked in the coal mines. Here I came to know intimately some of the dregs of Queenstown, clearing them of pedestrians. The soldiers searched hotels and the homes of many people, among them some Americans.

Rhode Island, where would have been host to Archbishop Mannix, told Universal Service that he was almost hurled by the Orders while he was in the street watching the welcome home bonfires.

Mannix Reaches London, Denies Political Motives

London, Aug. 10.—Archbishop Daniel J. Mannix of Melbourne, who was taken from the liner Baltic by a British destroyer and landed at Penzance to forestall his contemplated visit to Ireland, arrived from Penzance this morning. He denied that any political significance could be attached to his desire to visit Ireland, his only desire.

The Archbishop's friends did not know the exact hour of his arrival from Penzance, and there was only a handful of people, including a solitary priest at the railway station.

Archbishop Mannix and his secretary, Father Vaughan, wandered about the station for some time before they found the taxicab stand. Then they went to St. Mary's College, Hammersmith, a Roman Catholic institution. Some of the priests at St. Mary's College had been colleagues of Archbishop Mannix at Maynooth.

When the college was reached there was further delay as the father superior was not receiving visitors. For nearly ten minutes the Australian archbishop and Fr. Vaughan stood upon the steps in front of the building alternately ringing the doorbell and chatting together.

"I have no grudge against the British people, or against any one person," declared Archbishop Mannix, while waiting for some one to open the door. "Naturally, I was disappointed at not being allowed to visit Ireland, for I had my heart set on visiting my relatives whom I had not seen for a long while. I cannot say definitely what I shall do now, for I had no other plans than this visit to my home folks when I came to Great Britain."

IRELAND RAGING OVER MANNIX

Leaders Declare Abduction a Great Blunder That Will Strengthen Sinn Fein

Dublin, Aug. 10.—The whole South of Ireland today is enraged at the treatment the British government accorded Archbishop Daniel J. Mannix of Australia, but the Sinn Fein leaders are quite unable to disguise their astonishment at that they deem a tremendous governmental blunder that will surely strengthen the Sinn Fein movement.

"Every liberty of the Irish has been trampled under foot during the last three or four years," said one. "The Mannix incident, which is only one of many, and a very opportune one, will make known to the whole world how the Irish are treated."

When the officers of the British destroyers boarded the liner Baltic to take the archbishop off the military took possession of the streets of Queenstown, clearing them of pedestrians. The soldiers searched hotels and the homes of many people, among them some Americans.

Rhode Island, where would have been host to Archbishop Mannix, told Universal Service that he was almost hurled by the Orders while he was in the street watching the welcome home bonfires.

CHARGE McGRAW STARTED FIGHT

Club Committee Explains Fracas in Which Peacemaker Was Badly Hurt

New York, Aug. 10.—First explanation of the quarrel in which John J. McGraw is said to have injured John G. Slavin, when the latter attempted the role of peacemaker between McGraw and another member of the Lambs Club, was given by the house committee of the club.

"At the time of the altercation," the statement says, McGraw came into the club and mistook a certain member for a man with whom he had had a difference. He grossly insulted this member, was very violent in accusing and provoked a quarrel, in which the club member was on the defensive.

"After the difference had been settled, Mr. Slavin endeavored to persuade his friend, McGraw, into a taxicab and took him away from the club. Mr. Slavin had at no time any part in the altercation except as peacemaker."

COUNTESS HIT BY LIGHTNING

Former Gladys Vanderbilt, Victim of Bolt in Adirondacks, Recovers

By International News Service.

Glens Falls, N. Y., Aug. 10.—Countess Szechenyi, formerly Miss Gladys Vanderbilt of New York, has recovered from a severe electrical shock she suffered Sunday afternoon during a hard thunder storm which swept through the Adirondacks.

The Countess was sitting in front of an open fireplace in the hunting lodge of her sister, Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, at Forked Lake, when a bolt of lightning flashed down the chimney and struck her.

Dr. Santone, the physician on the Harry Payne Whitney preserve, was called.

FIVE GERMAN WARSHIPS ANCHORED IN HUDSON

New York, Aug. 10.—Five warships of the once mighty German navy, battered and shell-scarred, are at anchor in the Hudson river. The vessels, the dreadnought Ostfriesland, the light cruiser Frankfort and three destroyers, will be on exhibition here for two weeks when they will be studied by officers and men of the Atlantic fleet, and will then be destroyed, in accordance with the agreement among the Allies at the time of the apportionment of the imperial fleet.

Monkey Famine Boosts Cost of Youth

By Universal Service.

Chicago, Aug. 10.—The "high cost of youth" has been added to the list.

Dr. Serge Voronoff, French surgeon, brought to Chicago his message of vigor restored through transplanting of monkey glands in the human body, then he announced that his work would be greatly hampered because of the monkey shortage. That position in Chicago which took on an expression of optimism with the surgeon's arrival, lost it again when he made his announcement.

Thus it appears that another good thing has a string attached to it.

"We need big monkeys," said the surgeon, "to be successful in giving our patients real vitality. I prefer the orang-outangs, chimpanzees, 'chimps,' as they are professionally called, and gorillas."

Since the animals are not produced in America, the cost of youth is going to be high from the first. If these creatures are hunted in Africa and imported they will come through heavier commercial channels and in all probability be intercepted by health officers reaching patients who feel their need.

Dr. Voronoff demonstrated his famous operation on the American hospital. He did not have a human patient, however, and substituted animals. It was witnessed by 400 doctors.

COX IS AFTER WOMAN VOTE

Flying Squadron of Feminine Speakers to Join With 5,000 Others in State

Dayton, Ohio, Aug. 10.—Governor James M. Cox, Democratic Presidential candidate, laid his plans to win the support of the ten million women expected to vote in the November election.

This appeal will be carried into every State by a "flying squadron" of women speakers of national reputation, whose work will be supplemented by 5,000 local women speakers in every precinct in the country.

Governor Cox was told by Western representatives on the notification committee that the women's vote which went a President Wilson on the "He kept us out of war" slogan in 1916, was the decisive factor in the Democratic victory in twelve Western States, and that similar support can be obtained this year on the League issue.

Women leaders of the party also have assured the candidate that his strong stand for ratification of the peace treaty and the League covenant will draw the women of the nation to his standard.

To put the campaign for the women vote immediately under way Mrs. George W. Davis, of Chicago, was announced, has been appointed executive chairman of the women's campaign committee.

GIRL HOBO HELD FOR PARENTS

Report Her Mother in Berlin, N. H., Is Ill and May Be Unable to Reach Boston

Seventeen-year-old Mammie Jane Irving of Berlin, N. H., who was found in an empty freight car in East Somerville, by Patrolman William J. Warner of the Somerville police, in charge of Mrs Mina T. Weeks, matron at Somerville police headquarters, pending word from her folks in Berlin.

The girl informed Chief of Police Kendall that she is the step-daughter of Herman Welch, who is employed in the paper mill at Berlin. She admitted to the chief that she ran away from home about three weeks ago. He stole a horse and buggy, the girl said, which was used to convey her family to Maine and he sold the outfit for $20 in order to get some food.

For two weeks, according to the story of the girl to Chief Kendall, they traveled over Maine and finally arrived at Portland. Transportation was by means of box freight cars, which the girl entered at night, and in the daytime they would secure something to eat. The man escaped from the freight car before the arrival of the police. They arrived in the East Somerville yards Sunday night.

Maine Has Ice Cream Mine, So They Say

Greenville, Me., Aug. 10.—Northwestern Maine was thrilled today by reports of the discovery of an ice cream mine in the little village of Indian Pond. According to reports, the mine was found last Saturday by Crystal, Jack and Freda, the children of John Frost, of Freeman, a lumberman.

The Frost children were blueberrying in the pasture of Abner L. Davis when they became interested in a lower section corner completely covered by a thin coating of ice.

Under the ice they found a cold pink mixture which looked so much like strawberry ice cream that they decided to taste it. On Monday other children were on the place.

Yesterday the crowd was so great that Davis posted the field and stood guard with a shotgun. One report is that the diggers had got down to a strata of vanilla when they were driven off.

ner. Mr. Ponzi has but one checking account in the bank, and that account is overdrawn. He also has on deposit the certificate of deposit for $1,000,000. This is a negotiable security. The bank does not know but what Mr. Ponzi has made that payable to some one else.

"Under the law, thirty days must elapse from the time the deposit was made until Mr. Ponzi could be allowed to transfer the certificate of deposit to his checking or any other account."

ADVISE TO INVESTORS.

Referring to the Attorney-General's opinion, Ponzi said:

"I am not in a position to conceive of his object, but I feel that the noteholders ought to refrain from giving anybody any information that could serve no one but the note holder and myself. No relief or benefit from the present situation is to be expected or derived from state officials and furthermore it is very likely that said information may be used to further the aims of the banking ring in their attempt to crush an honest competitor.

"There is a report, apparently from Bank Commissioner Allen, that I carry only one account at the Hanover Trust. It made a statement to that effect. It made a statement that my own made. I do not hesitate to qualify it as a falsehood. I have in the Hanover Trust $1,500,000, which the records show belong to Charles Ponzi. I am carrying there also an account under the name of Lucy Martelli, trustee.

"Up to two or three days ago and previous to the opening of the Lucy Martelli account I had three accounts in the Hanover Trust, namely, Charles Ponzi, The Conti and Securities Exchange Company, The Conti and Securities Exchange and part of the Charles Ponzi account were merged into one account and became the Lucy Martelli account.

"TOLD ALLEN LIES."

"What I told Attorney-General Allen was all lies."

This was the admission of Ponzi when confronted with a statement of the Attorney-General, in which he declared Ponzi's stories of his business and bank deposits.

"Is Mr. Allen's statement correct as to the amount of business you have done through Italian banks?" he was asked.

"Of course it isn't true," he replied.

"But he got that information as a result of information you supplied him, didn't he?"

"I wanted to send him on a wild goose chase. Why should I tell him the truth? I'll go through again. I will send him on another wild goose chase. I told him half. It was all lies."

Today 100 noteholders appeared at the School street office to voice their concern and demanded their money. They did not get it.

A strong-arm squad of four nearby individuals kept them out of the office itself and told them to come another time.

One of these guards was armed with a wicked-looking club. He had no occasion to use it.

ALLEGES TRANSFER

Ponzi declared today that $275,000 which he claimed was deposited to his credit in a bank in Manchester, N. H., had been transferred to the account of the agent, Joseph Bruno, without his knowledge and consent.

His attorney declared that a request made by order of Attorney-General Oscar L. Young of New Hampshire, on behalf of the investigation of Attorney-General J. Weston Allen of Massachusetts, was responsible for the transfer.

Ponzi further averred that as a result of the alleged transfer, two checks, one for $150,000 and another for $200,000 made payable to himself and endorsed and that he had given to Bruno, had become worthless in consequence.

"I had been directed by United States Attorney Daniel H. Coakley to place all my money and securities in one bank so that the government officials could more readily judge the amount of my assets," said Ponzi.

$200,000 CHECK RETURNED.

"In line with this suggestion I sent to the Manchester bank a check for $200,000 made payable to myself and was astonished to receive a report that there were not sufficient funds to pay such a check.

"Then I forwarded a second check for $150,000 and was further astonished to learn that no funds at all stood in that bank in my name. Insisting upon an explanation I was informed that my deposit had been transferred to the account of Mr. Bruno, my agent in Manchester, by order of Attorney-General Young after he had conferred with Attorney-General Allen of this State. I had not been consulted before it was done. I could get a dollar from that bank although I have $275,000 in it on there.

"It is the work of the bank ring. First they prevent my New Hampshire agent from operating and then they transfer my account to him. They are trying to embarrass me.

"WILL MEET LIABILITIES."

"They are trying to crowd me to the wall. I have plenty of assets and will meet all my liabilities, if they will let me alone. It is the same with the order of Bank Commissioner Allen stopping the Hanover Trust Company from honoring my checks or those of my agents, on the plea that my account has been overdrawn.

"I have paid out more than $5,500,000 in a span of days. I have gilt edge securities, but the banks will not furnish me with cash on them. It is all part of the campaign to discredit me and to change public opinion."

Ponzi puffed a choice brand of cigarette through a gold holder as he made this statement. He was provoked for the first time. He showed more bitterness than at any time since the combined forces of nation, state, county and city focused their spot lights on him and his mysterious "get-rich-quick" methods. In fact he looked downcast and lost his smile for a spell, the smile that had been his "standby."

$2,300,000 IN SECURITIES.

Attorney Daniel H. Coakley, of counsel for Ponzi said to an American reporter:

"Mr. Ponzi told me that $500,000 will cover all of his liabilities and he showed me securities of the par value of $2,300,000. Remember I saw those gilt edge securities with my own eyes.

"Nobody but Mr. Ponzi can definitely determine his total obligations until Mr. Pride, the accountant, finishes his audit, which was not completed at yesterday's conference with United States District Attorney Gallagher.

At the close of a three-hour star chamber session, District Attorney Daniel J. Gallagher said:

"Mr. Ponzi and his counsel have been checking up with Edwin L. Pride, the accountant, the result of Mr. Pride's audit. The work has not been completed. We shall hold another conference and there may be something to say then."

Lawrence Ponzi Office Has Demands for $35,000 in Stock

Portugal Stops Coupon Sale; Spurious Money Floods Europe

Europe is flooded with counterfeit money, according to a cable received from Lisbon, Portugal, by Thomas B. Peters of Boston, former manager of the Paris Theatre. The cable informed Peters of the suspension by the government of all sales of international coupons following similar action by France, Italy and Belgium.

Peters, whose foreign agent most of Charles Ponzi, and who was sent to corroborate Ponzi's claim of profits in international coupons, has been warned regarding investments in foreign money. The cable follows:

"All on reply coupons in Europe until the exchanges come back. All people buying exchanges should be careful and buy from reliable firms and banks, as European countries are flooded with counterfeit money."

GAS OVERCOMES 18 FIREMEN

Members of Worcester Department Collapse as Fumes Fill Cellar at Blaze

Worcester, Aug. 10.—Three Worcester firemen are in the City Hospital as a result of being overcome by gas and fifteen others were practically overcome when a pipe in the home of Mrs. H. L. Lynch on Van Coburn avenue burst while the men were fighting fire in the basement.

District Chief Henry Douglas, his son, Henry Douglas, Jr., and Michael Shea of Engine 6 are in a critical condition at the City Hospital. Captain Henry A. Cronin of Ladder 2 and Captain Frederick H. Bassford of Engine 6 were discharged from the hospital after two hours' treatment.

The five men removed to the hospital collapsed while attempting to check the flow of gas. Thirteen other firemen attached to the various fire houses in the city staggered from the cellar in a dazed condition and collapsed when they reached the fresh air. They were revived after being treated by Dr. Shannahan, police surgeon.

Captain Bassford discovered the leak and was overcome while attempting to stop it by placing his hand over the break. District Chief Douglas saw him fall and was in turn overcome when he attempted to stop the leak.

The fire started in the cellar, where a three-year-old grandson of Mrs. Lynch was playing with matches. The heat of the blaze broke the gas supply pipe. When the firemen arrived the cellar was filled with poisonous fumes.

Members of the district commission refused to make any statement other than that the bathers would be taken care of, regardless of the walkout.

America's most celebrated boy

Home life of Johnny Jones, 12-year-old screen star, described by his father. Mr. Jones gives his ideas on bathing and health

A real American boy, full of merriment and mischief, Johnny Jones has won nation-wide fame as "Edgar," in the series of stories written by Booth Tarkington for the Goldwyn Pictures Corporation. Johnny will be twelve in November of this year. He had already appeared in many productions before this final series that made him America's most celebrated boy. Johnny lives at 1729 Sunset Blvd., Hollywood, California. His greatest ambition just now is to be a civil engineer.

WHEN he was only six months old, Johnny Jones made his first appearance on the stage. To-day at the age of 12, he has already starred in six big motion pictures.

As "Edgar," the jolly, red-blooded boy in Booth Tarkington's famous films, he has captured the hearts of Americans in all parts of the country.

"Johnny is always throwing a lariat or riding a horse when he's not working," said Mr. Edward Jones, his father. "And he has his tutor to study with in addition to acting for the camera. Mrs. Jones and I feel that the real secret of his success lies in his splendid vitality.

"As a family we have always followed the simple rules of health. Long ago, for instance, we learned the importance of correct bathing and care of the skin. We all use Lifebuoy Health Soap because its fine lather leaves the skin glowing as no other soap can."

Like this well-known family, two million others in the United States have found out that correct bathing with Lifebuoy plays a real part in building health. Its quick, generous lather and mild antiseptic keep the entire skin always active and stimulated.

Doctors have found that a "lazy," inactive skin frequently makes trouble for the entire body.

How a "lazy" skin causes discomfort and lowered vitality

Some people are always sneezing in draughts and catching cold—others are forever complaining of the heat in summer.

These two troubles—and many others—are often the result of a "lazy," inactive skin.

The tiny muscles and glands of our skin relax and grow weak—just as the muscles of the body become flabby when they are not exercised.

We suffer too much from heat and cold with a "lazy" skin like this. It cannot do its full work in protecting the body from changes in temperature. We grow "tired out" more easily. In addition a "lazy" skin is much more likely to break out in rashes and eruptions.

Keep your skin active—glowing with health

Thousands of people have found a pleasant way to keep their skin always "on the job."

A bath in warm water with the rich, bubbling lather of Lifebuoy Health Soap—then a cold sponge-off and a vigorous rub-down—

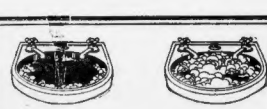
Try this yourself and see how it leaves you "tingling" all over. It gives your skin just the right kind of exercise. That means a clearer, fresher complexion, too—the radiant, outdoor look that everyone admires.

Notice, too, the clean, wholesome odor of the rich Lifebuoy lather. It contains a special ingredient—a mild antiseptic that purifies and stimulates the skin. The odor tells you of this antiseptic—tells you why Lifebuoy is known as the Health Soap.

Start to-day to make every bath help build health for your whole body. Take a cake of Lifebuoy home with you. It is on sale at grocers, department and drug stores. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

LIFEBUOY HEALTH SOAP

Copyrighted 1920, by Lever Bros. Co.



Ordinary Soap Lifebuoy Health Soap

Work up the best possible lather in warm water with some ordinary soap. Then try the same experiment with Lifebuoy. You will find that Lifebuoy makes at least 50% more lather.

50% more lather than ordinary soap

Rich, generous lather—half again as much as with ordinary toilet soaps. That's the result of the Red Palm oils in Lifebuoy.

Try the simple test shown above. See for yourself that Lifebuoy forms at least 50% more lather.

Notice, too, the clean wholesome odor of the Lifebuoy antiseptic. The generous lather carries this cleansing antiseptic right down into the pores of the skin. That is why Lifebuoy keeps your whole skin glowing with health.

For the face and hands

More than any other parts of the body, the face and hands are exposed to dirt and grime. They especially require a soap that forms a heavy creamy lather, which will loosen the dirt, and carry it away.

Try Lifebuoy the next time you wash your face and hands. Notice how much cleaner—how much cooler the rich Lifebuoy lather makes them feel than ever before. Watch your skin improve.

$200 in prizes for letters from Lifebuoy users

Every day we are hearing from more and more Lifebuoy users who are doing remarkable and unusual things. If you or your family are among the 2,000,000 users of Lifebuoy, and have won a prize, or done something interesting, write us a letter describing it and telling why you like Lifebuoy.

We will award prizes of 100.00, $75.00 and $35.00 for the three best letters. Enclose the end of a Lifebuoy carton in your letter and mail it on or before August 31. Address to Dept. A 18, Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

Thin People Need Phosphate Most In Hot Weather

Apt to Take on Good Healthy Flesh Even on Sweltering Days If Pure Phosphate Is Taken with Meals

Druggists Discuss Nitro-Phosphate Because It Is Real Organic Phosphate.

Thin men and women, nervous and constantly out of sorts, who want nerve force, energy, ambition and power of endurance are just the people who will find a helpful friend in Nitro-Phosphate which is undoubtedly just what your nerve, blood and bone cells are begging for.

Phosphorus is a very important element in every living cell in your body. Without the necessary supply, soon minds grow dull and often stupid, old-time ambition vanishes and a wretched feeling of exhausted power supplants that once-indomitable spirit so necessary to success in these strenuous times.

As evidence of results in cases of thin, exhausted people, clinical tests in St. Catherine's Hospital, New York, showed that two patients gained in weight one 15 pounds and the other 17, while organic phosphate was administered, and both patients claim they have not felt so well and strong in the past twelve years.

Such tests as these lead Frederick S. Kolle, M. D., Editor-in-Chief of Physicians' "Who's Who," an author of medical text books and member of Authors' Committee of America, Health League, Physicians' Legislative League, etc., to remark: "If I had my way Nitro-Phosphate should be prescribed by every doctor and used in every hospital."

And Joseph D. Harrigan, former Visiting Specialist to North Eastern Dispensary, says: "Let those who are weak, thin, nervous, anaemic or run-down, take a natural, unadulterated substance such as Nitro-Phosphate and you will soon see some astonishing results in the increase of nerve energy, strength of body and mind and power of endurance."

Nitro-Phosphate (the inexpensive organic phosphate) for those who are anxious to improve their health, is dispensed by all leading druggists in the original packages.

STRENGTH

"Red blood, rich in iron is a never failing source of strength and endurance" says Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.) New York, and the Westchester County Hospital. "Many a man is losing the strength, health and enthusiasm of earlier years simply because there is not sufficient iron in his blood to send it, pure and red, flowing through his body, rebuilding wasted tissue and renewing energy and force.

"It is the man who keeps his blood filled with organic iron—like Nuxated Iron—who is building within himself the strength that towers in an emergency, a strength that endures; a strength that masters obstacles and clears the way to success."

Nuxated Iron is prescribed and recommended by physicians and is now being used by over 4,000,000 people annually to build red blood, strength and endurance.

CANNIBAL FILM OFFERS RARE TREAT

By HARLOWE HARE

If you possess any curiosity to know what a cannibal looks like, "Shipwrecked Among Cannibals," at Tremont Temple, will be sure to interest you. This "filum" was positively taken by accident. Not a single scene was studied or worked out on a studio stage.

By chance it happened, that's the way all shipwreck stories begin, two motion picture experts were crossing the Pacific when their vessel was wrecked and they landed upon the shore of a cannibal isle, having rescued the cameras and a few thousand feet of celluloid. They made friends with the natives, who had recently eaten a few missionaries, got indigestion and were definitely off white meat, and during their stay of several weeks got many interesting scenes of life among the festive savages.

A very large audience assembled at Tremont Temple yesterday afternoon despite the torrid atmosphere. I suspect that a lot of them imagined they were going to see somebody cooked and actually eaten during the course of the entertainment.

But when a cannibal is not cannibalizing he is not so different from a colored gentlemen, who is not a cannibal, but a professing Baptist or Methodist in the South Sea Isles. Large quantities of black persons were exhibited in a state of extreme disbabile. They were seen dancing, making love, enjoying their island home in every way. Some of them found innocent merriment in decorating themselves with human skulls and other bones. As a geographical and anthropological exposition, "Shipwrecked Among the Cannibals" is an interesting picture.

GOOD SUMMER BILL OFFERED AT KEITH'S

Headline honors at B. F. Keith's Theatre this week are divided between Mary Young and company and Charles (Chic) Sale. The entire bill evidently has been arranged to take one's mind off the torrid weather and entertain the jaded temperament.

"Juliet Comes First" is the title of Mary Young's vehicle. It was written by Harry Wagstaff Gribble, who takes the part of Romeo. The sketch has to do with the closing scene of Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet," and then the audience is given a peak at the leading lady's dressing room, where the sweet sentiments that prevail between the stage lovers is conspicuous by its absence.

"Chic" Sales takes one back to Rube days. His inimical impersonations of the village preacher and each performer at the church social is a relief from the heat. All the characters are taken from rural life and range from youth to old age.

Harry Holmes and Florrie La Vere please in a novelty called, "Themselves." There is some hazardous contortioning by Johnson, some jazz stepping by Russell and Davitt and pretty tunes and clever dancing by Josephine and Henning. Ralph Herz is on the bill in songs and recitations. His lecture, dated 1956, on the relics of liquor days causes many a chuckle.

Fay Courtney may well be called a girl with personality in her songs. Jean Duval and company portray various gems of art. There are also the usual Kinograms and Topics of the Day.

Plays That Remain

TREMONT THEATRE—The unusual has constantly been showing itself during the run of "Mary" at the Tremont Theatre, which began its final three weeks last evening. And now, because of the insatiable demand for seats by the public and the disappointment facing such a large number during the remaining days here, the management has been forced to give an extra matinee each week on Thursday.

Coming Events

ARLINGTON THEATRE—Opening the season at the Arlington Theatre next Monday evening will be seen that most popular of human interest plays, "Turn to the Right," which had a long run in Boston last season. This engagement will be played at popular prices, conforming to the new policy of the Shuberts at this house.

WILBUR THEATRE—"Irene," the smart musical comedy which holds records in New York and London for long runs, will be the sensational attraction at the Wilbur Theatre, starting next Monday, August 16, when it will make its frontal attack on the hearts of Boston theatregoers.

OLD SOUTH THEATRE OPENED BY GORDON

By F. J. McISAAC

A new theatre has been added to the Gordon chain of high class picture houses. It is the Old South Theatre, directly opposite the Old South Church, on Washington street. This has long been a stuffy, small-time picture house. The Gordon people have completely renovated the place, enlarged it, fitted it up luxuriously, installed a fine ventilating system and arranged a high class bill which puts it in the class with the Olympia Theatres; a pleasant place for nice people to visit.

Nathan Gordon, the motion picture theatre wizard himself, was visible around the lobby yesterday afternoon when I dropped in. In some extraordinary manner his artists and decorators had transformed a dingy and uninviting lobby into an extremely agreeable place, and the orchestra floor, where comfortable arm chairs have replaced the old wooden seats, was entirely filled with people who were watching the latest Anita Stewart release "The Yellow Typhoon," a very enthralling and bizarre film. It looked as though the Old South, under Gordon management, was a success from the start.

NORWORTH SCORES IN NEW FARCE

By F. J. McISAAC

H. H. Frazee, the person who endeared himself to the Boston sporting fraternity by selling Babe Ruth, has further got himself into their good graces by tipping off their wives that as far as husbands are concerned "you've got to keep 'em broke to keep 'em straight."

That is the moral of "My Lady Friends," a farce by Emil Nyitray and Frank Mandel, which opened the season at the Park Square last night. Sig. Giuseppi di Pesa, the Roman press agent of that theatre, had secured as an extra added attraction to offset the hot weather, his fellow-countryman, Sig. Ponzi, the frenzied financier, who has been occupying the front pages of all the newspapers lately.

Ponzi wore a Palm Beach suit, an airy, carefree manner and abstained from paying out any money during the performance. He was seen to admire the eight or nine beautiful and sumptuous ladies in the drama, and between the acts was taken behind and got introduced to one and all.

Jack Norworth is the star of "My Lady Friends," having succeeded the late Clifton Crawford in the leading role. For a fellow who has spent all his life in front of a row of girls singing rollicking ditties with a few fancy steps thrown in for good measure Norworth displayed decided talent for the boff. Manager Clyde McArdle of the Somerville Strand said that with a little coaching he could get him in play "Hamlet" or "East Lynne."

"My Lady Friends" is rather a bright little farce. It is pretty suggestive, but the lines are crisp and often laughable. Norworth plays a Bible publisher, so, whose wife is economical, so, with the best intentions in the world, he pays the bills of a girl in Boston, one in Washington, and one in Frisco. These careless ladies amble in about the second act. He also philanders with a flapper who doesn't do anything worse than sit on top of a piano Norworth is playing in a dizzy bathing suit and bare legs.

I agree with Ponzi that all the ladies in the cast are beautiful. Even Hilda the maid, amusingly played by Ray Bowdin, has the making of a good looker. I suspect Miss Bowdin of being all right, without her comedy makeup, and possibly a great social success. Aside from their pulchritude there is little dramatic talent loose in the bunch, and Marguerite McNulty and Jessie Nagle would seem to have cornered what there is. The three "baby dolls," Clara Zadera, Frances Richards and Janet Horton, prove that Ziegfeld no longer possesses a monopoly.

P. S.—H. H. Frazee met Ponzi on the way out, but did not succeed in selling him the Red Sox.

SHUBERT THEATRE—"Kissing Time," a new musical comedy, headed by William Norris, and containing a large and talented cast, opened the season at the Shubert Theatre last night. There was a big audience in attendance and the various numbers were loudly applauded. The piece gave every evidence of being a success.

ORPHEUM THEATRE—A most refreshing program was offered patrons of Lowe's Orpheum Theatre yesterday with an all star bill. Billie Howard and Arthur Lewis offered a smart skit, "Do You Like Me?" with plenty of punch and pep. Douglas Flint and company captivated the audience with their clever one-act comedy, "Easy Money." Godfrey and Henderson, in a splendid comedy diversion, "Before and After," afforded many laughs. Other acts were Rita Shirley, in an artistic revue of modern song hits; Will Bissett and Georg Scott, in a clever dancing act styled, "Hello George," and Montambo and Nap, the eccentric acrobatic funsters.

PARK THEATRE—When Wallace Reid injects his breezy personality into a smashing farce comedy like "The Lottery Man" screen audiences can expect things to hum. They do. Many at the Park Theatre yesterday, where the picture opened for a two days' run, recalled when the original story scored such an emphatic hit on Broadway as a stage play some nine years ago, and later repeated that success on the road. "The Lottery Man" is above the average run of screen comedies, not only because it is unusually well done, but also because it embodies a brand new laugh-getting idea. Jack Wright, played by Wallace Reid, is a newspaper reporter, in debt to his boss, who must produce a big story that will boost the paper's circulation sky-high.

Vivian Martin, in "His Official Fiancee," will be seen on Wednesday and Thursday, and on Friday and Saturday Bryant Washburn, in "It Pays to Advertise," will be the feature.

MODERN AND BEACON—Maurice Tourneur, who was so successful in translating the athmosphere and dash of "Treasure Island" to the screen, has pictured another Robert Louis Stevenson story with equally happy results. The picture is "The White Circle," adapted from Stevenson's "The Pavilion on the Links."

GORDON'S OLYMPIA—For the first time in her screen career, Anita Stewart appears as a vamp in a motion picture. "The Yellow Typhoon," from the novel by Harold MacGrath, which is being shown all this week at Gordon's Olympia.

SCOLLAY SQUARE OLYMPIA—Joseph J. Dowling, the wonderful old "Miracle Man" of George Loane Tucker's photoplay, is one of the stars seen last evening at Gordon's Scollay Square Olympia in the principal roles of "Hiders of the Dawn," Benjamin B. Hampton's production of the famous Zane Grey novel. The Olympia Weekly, a new comedy, and big bill of vaudeville complets the program.

BOY IS DROWNED IN FROG POND

Body Found by Playmate an Hour After South Boston Youth Meets Death

With scores of youthful playmates wading and frolicking nearby, William Kirby, aged ten, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Kirby of No. 185 Forbes street, South Boston, was drowned in the shallow waters of the Frog Pond, on Boston Common, without the knowledge of any of his companions.

An hour after the youth met his death the body was discovered near the Beacon street side of the pond.

Marks on his face indicate that the boy may have met his death when he struck the bottom of the pond while diving.

"Aida" Sale Opens

The sale of seats for the open air production of "Aida," in celebration of the Pilgrim Tercentennial, which takes place at Braves Field on September 1, opened yesterday. Tickets were offered simultaneously at four places, Steinert Hall, Tremont Temple Wright & Ditson's and Filene's. There was a brisk demand everywhere, and the indications are that every seat in the great amphitheatre will be occupied.

GAYETY THEATRE—"They're off!" The burlesque season has started and the opening gun was fired yesterday at the Gayety Theatre where the "Hip Hip Hooray Girls" romped away as a winner in the song, dance and comedy handicap with a chorus of beautiful girls in costumes that were not only beautiful but stirring.

MELVIN O. ADAMS DEAD AT 67

Narrow Gauge President and Lawyer Expires Suddenly from Heart Trouble

Melvin O. Adams died suddenly from probable heart trouble at his home, No. 36 Beacon street. The late president of the Boston, Revere Beach & Lynn Railroad, lawyer and business man expired shortly after returning home from a busy day at his office. He was aged sixty-nine and is survived by his wife and son, Karl.

"Mel" Adams was one of Boston's best known and liked public men. He was born in Ashburnham, November 7, 1850, and at twenty-one years was graduated from Dartmouth College. As a "grad" he was noted, having been a trustee of the college for seventeen years, being prominent in all the institution's activities and extending a helping hand to its young graduates, scores of whom were employed, while students, on the Narrow Gauge every Summer.

He began his career by teaching school at Pitchburg, then turning to law and being admitted to the Suffolk County bar in 1875. As a trial lawyer one of his most famous cases was that in defence of Lizzie Borden. He was assistant district attorney of Suffolk County for ten years, and United States District Attorney for seven years.

He was elected to the presidency of the Narrow Gauge road in 1891, and under his direction the line prospered.

Easiest Way to Remove Ugly Hairy Growths

(Beauty Culture)

Here is a method for removing hair from arms, neck, or face that is unfailing and is quite inexpensive: Mix a thick paste with some powdered delatone and water and spread on hairy surface. After 2 or 3 minutes, rub it off, wash the skin and every trace of hair has vanished. No harm or inconvenience results from this treatment, but be careful to get genuine delatone and mix fresh.—Advertisement.

ACCUSE VERMONT MAN OF KILLING GIRL OF 19

Johnson, Vt., Aug. 10—Arthur Mudgett, thirty-six years old, a farmhand, is under arrest charged with causing the death of Amy Shunio, nineteen years old, whose body was found two weeks ago on a lonely hilltop on the outskirts of the town. Attorney-General Frank C. Archibald is in Johnson to take charge of the case. It is alleged by the officials that Mudgett has told several conflicting stories. It was at first believed that the girl had committed suicide. State's Attorney Tracey began an investigation, aided by Detective Edwin C. Brown. An autopsy was performed on the body by State Pathologist Dr. Bingham H. Stone.

YANKEE FIGHTING SPIRIT WILL WIN OLYMPICS, SAYS MOAKLEY

ATHLETES HARD AT WORK

Men Fully Recovered From the Discomforts of Trip Over, Are Training Faithfully

By Universal Service.

Antwerp, Aug. 10.—The trouble that was started by several "Prima Donna-like temperaments" aboard the Princess Matoika, on which the American Olympic team crossed the ocean, seems to have blown over and the team members are settling down to their final training in great shape.

Head Coach Jack Moakley feels that although the team may not do as well as expected owing to the athletes losing their edge due to the crowded conditions, its fine fighting spirits will carry it through in spite of this.

Coach Robertson predicts that none of the world's track records would be broken at the games.

French Authorities Look For U. S. Victory

Paris, Aug. 10.—An American victory at the Olympic Games in Antwerp this year is predicted by Parisian sporting circles.

This opinion is based on American victories in the past as well as on the excellence of the American training system.

So convinced are the French of the superiority of American methods that they have called upon Schroder and Mahoney, former Harvard University coaches, to train the French athletes who are going to try to place the colors of France among the Olympic winners.

Here are a few opinions of leading French sportsmen in regard to the chances of the American athletes.

Joseph Genet, director of the French Athletic Union, who is organizing the French participants in the Olympic games:

"If the American competitors are as carefully picked this year as they were in the past they certainly will be the victors at the Olympic games.

"It must be remembered, however, that during the last few years great progress has been made by Finnish, Swedish, Norwegian and Danish athletes, and Americans, therefore, must expect more competition this year than before.

"America undoubtedly will win all the short races and the competitions involving individual skill, such as discus throwing and javelin throw, but in the long races they may be surpassed by the English, the Swedes and the French.

"Although we in France have made every effort to have a good showing at all Antwerp, not expecting the American victory, and, owing to the opportunity France has had since the war to appreciate America's sound preparation, we will welcome such a victory to spur us on to greater achievement."

Suzanne Lenglen, tennis player:

"We regret exceedingly that America is not sending any men to defend the tennis championship, but I hope for it to fall in French tennis circles that the Americans would have won in any tennis tournament."

Pierre Deschamps, president of the Academie des Sports:

"While the Americans undoubtedly will triumph easily in track athletics their position may be challenged seriously in boxing, fencing and rugby. In these sports, where mental alertness is an essential as physical fitness, the French and the British stand a pretty good chance of winning; the Swedes, too, are strong.

The Marquis de Polignac, vice-president of the National Sporting Club:

"The Americans are very strong but will try to avoid another exhausting competition."

Jacques Gillon, president of the Racing Club:

"America will be beaten by Sweden in races longer than 1,500 meters, also in swimming. But the shorter races are sure to be won by America. On the whole, I would say that, as in France are counting on the American runners to win the track athletics."

Madame Sarcent-Hazard, president of the Women's Aviation Club:

"American athletes have improved in the past that they are better prepared than athletes of other countries. Before, I understand, there were about 300 Americans for 10 French. This year there will clash are more nearly equal, and I hope America will meet with more competition."

Henry Marx, prominent Deputy and author of the bill introducing sports into all the schools of France:

"The Olympic games are excellent to arouse international pride and competition. While we would like to see France win, it matters little to us if we think America will. This though is regrettable, since the French people as a whole and in spite of newspaper talk, have the greatest admiration for the American sand for American sportsmanship."

Pal Reid Defeats Jackie Clarke

Pal Reid of Framingham won from Jack Clarke of Allentown, Pa., in the twelve-round main bout at the Lynn Arena. Lynn Reid was the aggressor throughout, but in the ninth round he was dropped to the floor, stepped into a right cross which nearly dropped him.

In the semi-final bout Young Gould of Brockton was awarded a decision over Al Laine of Cambridge. Young Jack Britton of Lynn knocked out Bill Hines of Revere in two rounds and Lew Kelly of South Boston stopped Johnny Vonger of East Boston in three rounds.

RED SOX BATTLE BROWNS AGAIN

Take Opening Game of St. Louis Series, 5 to 4, in Eleven Innings

St. Louis, Aug. 10.—The Red Sox are showing flashes of their Spring form in touring the West on their second journey. Robbing up and down around the pennant pole for the first six weeks the Red Sox were pushed aside when injuries interfered with Ed Barrow's regular observers and fence busters. Getting light pitching the Wets the Red Sox are faring severely outpointed. They started their final series with an exciting 1 to 4 score over the Browns in 11 innings and were kept in the game because Samuel Jones rendered a tight game on the hill.

When the Red Sox were here before they fanned off four straight, losing down big scores of 15-4, 11-5, 10-5 and 12-6. With 15 runs scored against them in four games naturally they did not have a chance. However, Jones is pitching as he did a year ago and, by stopping the Browns at times, held the margin close enough to allow a rally of two runs in the ninth to tie it.

Ninth Inning Swing Red Sox Feature

When the Red Sox were here in June they scored two in the ninth of the first game, three in the ninth of the second, two in the ninth of the third and four in the ninth of the fourth but without getting close.

Of course, Barrow is not counting upon the pennant. That prize is turned over to the Indians, Yanks and White Sox but there is that first division position open for the Browns, Senators and Red Sox and with the Senators losing a double header Barrow is but half a game behind Griffith and four and one-half in back of the Browns.

Games This Week.

White vs. Butler.
Shuman vs. Shepard.
Talbot vs. Hovey.

The game of the week in the Department Store League which will attract the most attention is the Talbot-Hovey game which is to be played at North End Park this afternoon. Should Talbots at present is leading the league, but will have to win this game to keep their advantage. Hoveys can step out in front of the league by defeating Talbots Thursday. A victory for Talbots, however, will clinch the pennant. After this game Talbot has but two games left on its schedule.

Talbot and Butler are the only two teams which are up with their schedule. At this time of the season each team should have played seven games. Hovey and White have played but five, while Shepard and Shuman have played six. Each team in school is to play ten games.

White should have an easy game this week, being scheduled to play Butler. After the defeat of last week by Talbot, Manager Butler is tangle, he out for revenge, and the Butler nine will have a tough battle on its hands.

Shuman and Shepard will play at their alley for Rose Bros. Monday night at North Brighton. Both teams have played four games so far each. During the last three games Shuman has not been playing the same brand of ball as it did the first of the season. Tom Rafferty did not play in the last game, but it is likely that he will play against Shepard.

The season was supposed to end in the middle of August but it looks as if it will run over into September. This will hardly give time for the two leading teams to play a series of games as was suggested before it goes over to play the New York Department Store League winner.

A CAMPAIGN SPEECH

Fellow citizens, we gather here today on the eve of a momentous decision. As the friend of the working man, you know that our party will give you the 9. We have always given everybody the worp.

During all my years spent in behalf of the public weal and have I have always slipped you one or the other, or both. As the constant dripping of water will wear away the mightiest rock-and-rye so will our party wear away the G. & R. forever. We have always stood for all that was honorable in corruption, all that was upright in subsidy and all that was noble in graft.

We do not know why there are no peaks on bellhop's caps. Why complain? If Providence saw fit to endow bellhop's caps with peaks, then bellhop's caps would have peaks. That is the situation in a nutshell. The only thing you ever found in a nutshell was a nut. Vote one straight ticket, even if it is crooked, and save America for the tax collectors. Our party will stick to its time-honored policy of not being responsible for hats and overcoats.

These men were selected in the final trials held here yesterday and the quartet will be picked from them just before the race.

2 MORE TODAY FOR BRAVES

Reds Get the Jump in First Twin Bill, but Locals Are Confident

By NICK FLATLEY.

Another broiled double header was on the books today for Braves Field, where the surface of the orchard is baked so hard that the infielders' toes are in danger every time the agate is thumped properly. These suns are the days for the boys—and the gloves who like the good old-fashioned style of hitting.

The Cincinnati Reds, who refuse to be knocked out of the championship fight, have emerged from a swatting slump, and threaten to ruin the peace of mind of the Braves' pitching staff. Their efforts in the opening dual bill produced enough clouting to win an ordinary pennant and completely wiped out the fact that the titleis pitchers aren't the best in the world right now.

'Twas a fact that the Brave fingers hadn't a thing to grab the Redlegs, who kept batting the ball and running around the pillows, between times wiping the perspiration off their tanned and corrugated foreheads.

Watson in Line to Hold Red Surge

The bludgeon assault was likely to be halted today, however, as John Watson, the latest sensation to flash across the horizon, was ready to step in and build up his victory string. John has collected his last four starts as easily as an auto owner collects trouble. He is charged with one defeat, but that on occasion of stepping in for relief work, where a single run meant defeat—not a fair test. Since then John has twice dropped the Cubs, with Alex up, and administered a pair of defeats to the Cards.

Our Braves did sufficient hitting themselves, while assimilating their double licking, to win out most games. Their pitchers couldn't stand up, however, and so the Tribe was more intimately connected with the wild battle for the cellar of the well known league. If Watson and Mc-Nair can show their customary brand of tossing this P. M. and the outfit hit back of them as they did yesterday, the Redlegs chances of getting back on the roof may be blasted to small pieces.

Moran Anxious for Cleanup in Series

Manager Pat Moran was up against it somewhat in the matter of chuckers, having none of his best nets racing. Ring who hasn't been going at his best, and Sallee, who hasn't either, were nominated by the wild battle for the cellar of the well known league. If Watson and McNair can show their customary brand of tossing this P. M. and the outfit hit back of them as they did yesterday, the Redlegs chances of getting back on the roof may be blasted to small pieces.

The Rabbit was at the ball park, but was advised against playing in the unusual torridity. The wound on his shin has recovered as rapidly as could be expected, and he has forgotten all about the shaking up he received when he voluntarily from his ruined automobile. Ford is filling in splendidly, but the Rabbit is at his best this year, and the Braves are a different team entirely when he's in them.

His hitting, fielding and general work has been glorious during the present home stand, and the fans are entitled to all the exhibition of the midget marvel that's possible.

BENNETT A. A. TO PLAY SERIES WITH ST. JOHN'S

The Bennett A. A. of Somerville and St. John's E. C. C. team of East Cambridge have been matched to play a series of games. The first of these contests will be staged at Lincoln Park, Somerville, Friday night, and the second at Thorndike Park, East Cambridge, Sunday. If a third game is necessary the place of action will be decided by a toss of a coin. The Bennetts scored their third victory of the season at Lincoln Park yesterday, whitewashing the First National Stores team of Boston, 3 to 0.

EAGLE A. A. TO PLAY LIBRARY BUREAU NINE

Twilight baseball will be started in the North End on next Thursday when the undefeated Eagle A. A. of the North End will tackle the Library Bureau baseball team from Cambridge. A close game is expected and arrangements have been made for a big large crowd. Santonuzzas and Cagliolo will be the battery for the Eagle while Avery and Williams will probably work for the Library Bureau. The game starts at 6:15 at North End Park, Commercial street.

SIEGEL ON TRAIL OF KLOBY

Battler Pays Compliments to Y. D. Champion; Boxes Flynn in Triple A Ring

By JACK CONWAY.

Nate Siegal, sturdy Baschmont warrior who meets Paddy Flynn of Everett in a twelve-round bout at the Armory A. A.'s show at Mechanics Building next Tuesday night, wants to get a match with Young Kloby.

"I believe Kloby should meet me before he talks about a tussle with Jack Britton for the world's welterweight championship," said Siegal today. "I won more ring bouts than Kloby while in France and have continued my winning drives since coming home.

"If I can get a bout with Kloby, I feel sure I will gain the honors. I realize that the Lawrence man is a stiff puncher and as aggressive as they come, but I have confidence enough in my own boxing ability and knowledge of the fine points of the game to feel that I would get the decision."

Paddy Flynn has hopes of getting a return match with Kloby. Inasmuch as the Everett man made things interesting for the Y. D. star for twelve frames his wish may be gratified if he upsets Siegal.

Kloby will not resume training until September. His has made more than $40,000 in the ring since returning from France and does not have to worry about boxing during the warm weather.

Billy Murphy to Meet Billy Fitzsimmons

Billy Murphy, Staten Island featherweight, and Billy Fitzsimmons of Chelsea, have been signed to meet in a twelve-round bout at the Crescent A. C. of Lowell Thursday night. These youths recently went twelve stirring rounds to a draw in contest in the Spindle City. Eddie Harvey is now matchmaker of the Lowell club and is planning to put on some high-class attractions.

Gardini to Wrestle in Middle West

Renato Gardini, Italian wrestler, has left for Chicago. He is carded to engage in four matches in the Middle West before he returns to Boston. Before leaving this city, Gardini stated he is not averse to clashing with Jim Londos, light-heavyweight champion of the world, should he defend a challenge at the Italian grappler.

Friedman Would Meet Montreal Again

Abe Friedman wants a return match with Young Montreal of Providence. Abe claims that at 145 pounds weights met at Woonsocket last Saturday, Montreal was awarded the decision. Friedman's manager, however, doesn't claim that his protege won, but he believes he showed enough class to entitle him to a draw. Mack states that the ring was made heavy by showers and that this fact greatly interfered with Friedman's work. Abe is a fancy stepper and couldn't move around very fast on the wet canvas. To make a bad situation worse some unwise individual put sawdust instead of resin on the canvas.

Mack is prepared to let Friedman meet Montreal at a Boston club and will wager a flock of perfectly good money at ringside odds that his protege gains the honors.

Robson Training for Bout With O'Dowd

Tommy Robson is busy at Franklin Callahan's camp at North Reading training for his twelve-round bout with Mike O'Dowd, which will be staged at Lawrence a week from Saturday afternoon. It will be interesting to see Robson in a ring with somebody he can hit without effort. O'Dowd comes rushing in wide open, and will be an easy target for Robson's fight hand punch. It was a Robson right-hander that knocked Jack Britton clear across the ring at the Arena a couple of years ago.

At the Arena Tom Morgan and Chat Britten would probably have landed out in Massachusetts avenue if it had been for the fact that he crashed against the ropes.

Armour Team Wins

The Armour & Co. team defeated the Bolalia nine, 3 to 1, at the M Street Playgrounds. Ring's pitching and McGivern's fielding featured the contest.

CHAPMAN WINS PACE D RACE

Snatches Victory from Grasp of Didier When 35-Mile Race Nears Close

After practically having the race within his grasp, Leon Didier, the French rider, was relegated to third position in a thirty-five-mile motor-paced race at the Revere Oval. George Chapman of Philadelphia was the winner, George Wiley second place man, and Freddie Hill in last place.

Hill and Didier encountered hard luck early in the race, each having tire punctures that lost distances they never were able to regain. Wiley kept the pace interesting by his many attempts to overtake Chapman. The latter always seemed to have just enough reserve speed to hold off his challenger. The winner's time was 48 minutes 18 2-5 seconds.

Tom Grimm and Johnny Fardig won an unlimited pursuit race from Hugh McFarland and Willie Keller. The men rode six miles and five laps before Fardig caught Keller, anchor man on his team. Keller came back and won a five-mile professional race, defeating Fardig to the tape in a spirited brush.

JACK RYAN TO COACH CORNELL BASEBALL TEAM

Ryan had charge of the University of Virginia baseball squad in 1915-1916, and at present is managing the Commerce team of the Government League and scouting for the Giants and Tigers.

John Henry, former Amherst and Washington catcher, coached at Cornell the past season on a one year's contract.

REVERE TIGERS TO PLAY ST. JOHN CATHOLIC CLUB

The Revere Tigers are playing their third twilight game tomorrow night at the Revere Oval. Their opponents for this game will be the St. John Catholic Club of Cambridge. This team has a fine record for nine similar to that of the Tigers and some exceptionally good baseball is in store for fans when the two clash as expected. Game will be called at 6:15 p. m. sharp.

GOLFERS MAKE EARLY START IN NATIONAL OPEN TOURNEY

268 STARS IN TOLEDO MATCHES

Record Field Forces First of Players to Get Away at Early Hour

By ROBERT E. HARLOW

Toledo, O., Aug. 10.—Two hundred and sixty-eight golfers, including all but a handful of the greatest players in the United States and a strong representation from England, started play here today at the Inverness Club for the open golf championship of the United States.

In order to get the entire field over the 18 holes preliminary qualifying round between dawn and sunset it was necessary to send the first pair away at 7 o'clock.

Starts were to be made after that at four-minute intervals until after 6 o'clock. The last pair off the first tee was not expected to reach the home green until after 8 p. m.

While the field is the largest which ever competed, critics here do not look for any upsets. Sixty-four golfers will qualify today and tomorrow for the championship proper, which will be contested Thursday and Friday over 72 holes.

When the final round is reached it is probable the old favorites will be found fighting for the title.

Hotels Are Filled to Overflowing Point

The tournament has international interest, as Harry Vardon and Ted Ray, the English experts, were starters. Vardon played today with Bobby Jones, and this pair carried the largest first day gallery, for the people were eager to see the veteran British master and the most brilliant young golfer in America in action.

There was no open betting and pool making at the Inverness Club, officials having taken pains to respect the request of the United States Golf Association that pool making and betting be prohibited on the club grounds.

There was plenty of money in sight at the down-town hotels, which were filled with golfers and their backers.

The Inverness course was in fine condition for the tournament, many of the professionals declaring it to be the best championship course they had played over. It is 6,569 yards long from tee to green.

All Roads Lead to the Inverness Club

Toledo, Aug. 10.—When the traffic officer at the main street intersection of a place as large as Toledo is wise to the fact that a golf championship is being held a few miles from his beat, it's a cinch that golf has arrived in the United States. A few years ago an Open Championship could have been staged here or in any other American city and if the stranger had asked the traffic officer about it the officer would probably have called the wagon.

The traffic officers were eager to direct strangers to the Inverness Club where the 1920 open began today.

This is the biggest golf tournament ever held in the United States and a field of more than 250 includes all of the world's greatest golfers. It has the first international flavor since 1913 when Harry Vardon and Ted Ray came near winning the event at Brookline. Francis Ouimet, who stopped the Englishmen in 1913, is practically the only top notch American golfer not competing.

Toledo Packed Full of Golfers

Massachusetts was well represented in the field. The Massachusetts golfers and partners in the preliminary qualifying round of 18 holes today follow:

E. D. Elliott, Woodland, with William G. Wahlborg.

John Cowan, Oakley, with Bob McDonald.

C. J. McGrath, Worcester, with John Walker.

Louis Tellier, Brae-Burn, with W. C. Downes, Jr.

Larry Paton, Homestead, with Jack Burke.

George Bowden, Commonwealth, with Peter O'Hara.

Walter Howe, Tatnuck, with P. C. Sullivan.

Harry Vardon Paired with Bobby Jones

One of the most interesting pairs out this morning was Harry Vardon, the veteran British champion with Bobby Jones of Atlanta, the youngest golfer in America who has gained national prominence. Bobby Jones hits the ball easily and ever since his first flash in the amateur championship in the Merion Cricket Club in 1916 he has been credited as one of the best style players ever developed in America.

There was little open betting and pool making as the officials of the Inverness Club appeared to be in earnest in fulfilling the request of the United States Golf Association that no pools or betting be allowed in vicinity of the club house during the American championships. There was plenty of betters downtown, where the hotels were crowded with the golfers and their followers.

Hagen Made Quiet Entry Into Toledo

Walter Hagen, the American champion, who is here to defend his title, made a very quiet entrance into Toledo. He came by the railroad tracks and arrived at the Inverness course just in time to get in a practice round which he did not take seriously as he is not worried about being one of the sixty-four who will qualify for the seventy-two holes of play for the championship. Walter still has numerous backing.

While the field is the largest ever it is likely to settle down in that important final round on Friday afternoon to that small group which usually has it out to the last green. American golfers know the favorites who are generally up there near the top when the holes are being played. Hagen is always one of them.

Golf is getting to be some game in the United States. An open championship is now quite an event among the annual sporting contest held in America.

Amateurs of Country Well Represented

The amateur strength of the country was well represented by Bobby Jones and Chick Evans. They played together in practice Monday and Bobby did a 74 and Chick a 76. The Massachusetts golfers are in good condition and John Cowan and George Bowden, the Massachusetts open champion, should do well. Cowan shot a 78 in practice and Bowden a 72.

Mike Brady, formerly professional at Oakley, is here and says he will be up near the top. Mike has had some low rounds over the Inverness course.

Players Pleased with Inverness Course

The players are greatly pleased with the Inverness layout. Many declare it to be the best championship course they have seen, although to many of the amateurs who played at Oakmont last Summer in the national amateur, Inverness looks about three shots easier. The long driver will have a great advantage here, especially if he can keep his shots down the middle.

The fairways are narrow, with plenty of rough and traps. The rough is so thick that it is difficult to get great distance from it.

George Bowden drew Jim Barnes and Jon Tellier George Fotheringham in the first round of match play in the professional golfer association championship to be contested next week at the Flossmore Country Club, Chicago.

Mike Patton Is Winner at Bretton Woods

Bretton Woods, N. H., Aug. 10.—Mike Patton, professional at the Mt. Pleasant House, with a card of seventy-one, was low scorer in a foursom in which, he paired with C. J. Dunphy, defeated Louis A. Hamilton and Robert McAvoy. The teams were even at the conclusion of the seventeenth hole. At the eighteenth Patton shot a birdie two and won the match.

British Keen to Win in Big Title Play

By WALTER C. HAGEN.

Open Golf Champion of the United States and France.

Toledo, O., Aug. 10.—The Brookline event, in 1913, was the first open that I took part in and I was glad to finish so well, three strokes behind the triple tie for first place. When I entered that tournament I had never even seen the best in this country let alone Vardon, Ray, Tellier and Reid, who represented England and France.

This year this famous old competition is on hand again and in addition there are several others. C. H. Mayo, who came over last Spring, will compete, as will Harry Ayton, another British golfer who has also taken a position in America.

Great Britain's chances this time appear to be quite as good as in years past, with the possible exception that we have a greater array of talent to put against them. Besides the four British pros, there is one amateur, Tom Armour of Scotland, one of the best amateurs that ever came from the home of golf. Armour was a favorite in the recent amateur championship at Muirfield. He failed to live up to expectations, but he got his revenge when he won the French amateur title, defeating J. C. Tolley in the final. The fact that he won from a high class field, with the British champion competing, brought up his stock again.

Served in France During War

Armour won four important amateur tournaments in England and Scotland this Summer. He was regarded as one of the most promising youngsters in the heather country before the war, and his experience in the trenches has not hurt his game any. He has an interesting war record, having been among the first to go to France and one of the last to leave. In the meantime he was wounded four times, but this did not keep him out of action very long. On his short vacations away from the battle line he spent the time playing golf.

Armour will be a dangerous contender in the amateur championship at the Engineers' Club. He will have the British champion fighting alongside of him this time and should one fail the other may come through. Tolley's victory over Bob Gardner has proved that he is quite good enough to play with our best. It is more than passing strange that Armour and Tolley should have fought through the war together in the same company, a tank corps, which they followed soon after the tank became popular. Tolley, however, was captured and spent the last year of the war in a German prison camp.

Champions Native-Born Ever Since 1910

Returning again to the open championship, it is interesting to note that not a foreign-born golfer has won the title since 1910, which was the year that McDermott tied with Alex and McDonald Smith, but lost in a play-off. The next two years saw McDermott at his best, and then along came Quimet with his sensational victory at Brookline. I was fortunate enough to win my first championship the following year, and then Jock Travers showed the way at Hallurst. It looked rather dubious for the time for Americans and foreign, when Chick Evans took up the cudgel for the amateurs and won the open in 1916. After three years of waiting, I managed to beat out the field again and gathered in my second victory in this event, the title that I am defending at Toledo.

I would much prefer that the Inverness course should be wet than dry. Nothing spoils a championship more than a baked out fairway. The greens can be watered and kept fairly fit, but the fairways cover too vast an area to be properly cared for.

England Determined to Get American Title

The story of the baked fairways at Deal has been told to American golfers too often for me to bring up the subject again. I want, however, to explain the conditions there that we had to contend with. Wind was an important factor, but not in the way that most golfers might think. No real golfer should ever let this bother him. When the wind played its strongest part was in drying up the course. Deal has been hard baked for weeks before the championship.

TAD'S TIDBITS

TEX RICKARD AND THE GARDEN

Well, New York is on the map at last.

Tex Rickard, who has a ten-year lease on Madison Square Garden, is getting ready to make the city a champion without a challenger.

In a talk at the Biltmore Tex said that he would bid for ALL big fights; ALL of the big wrestling matches; ALL of the big bike races; ALL of the big tennis matches; ALL of the track meets and, besides that, ALL of the swimming meets, for he intends building a tank in the Garden that will have as a rival only the Atlantic Ocean.

Rickard isn't boastful, but hopeful. There never was much bluster about the Western promoter. He just DOES THINGS and tells us about them afterward.

He remarked with a smile when called upon to make a speech at the dinner:

"You newspapermen have made me think that I'm a big promoter, and now that I've got myself thinking darned if I'm not going to try and live up to that reputation."

Tham Wuth Peeved

Some years ago while on a tour, Tham Langford stopped off at a small town for a match. The man he was to box was a waiter and quite nifty with his dukes. He had a big following, having cleaned up seven or eight huskies in that part of the country.

The big sports got to Tham and had him agree to let the waiter stay eight rounds, then box again in a nearby town.

Tham agreed, so they met.

The waiter knowing that he was to go the full eight rounds was quite cocky. Tham pulled punches, missed others and let the waiter be quite mussy. In the fourth round the waiter, somehow or other got the idea that he could lick Tham on the square, and started to sock hard. He busted Tham six or seven times before the Tar Baby got peeved to himself.

"My, but I am got sore!" He went to his corner at the end of the fourth with a bloody nose and a bloodshot eye.

He came up for the fifth with blood in his eye. Everybody knew it. As he walked to the centre of the ring he held out his hand to the fighting waiter. The latter backed away with a look of surprise.

"Why, Tham, this here ain't the eighth round," he squeaked as he continued to back up.

Tham followed him with extended mitt and piped:

"THEY AIN'T GONNA BE NO EIGHTH ROUND!"

SINGLE UPSET IN TENNIS AT NEWPORT

Newport, R. I., Aug. 10.—The annual invitation tennis tourney at the Newport Casino got away to a good start, and only six matches remain to be played in the first round of singles, while the doubles went for five matches.

The only thing lacking was the victorious Davis Cup team, just back from England. Their first round matches were held over until tomorrow, allowing a rest after their ocean trip. Williams, Johnston and Garland arrived last night, and the world's champion, Tilden, was expected this morning.

With the exception of Willis Davis over Wallace F. Johnson, there were no serious upsets in the singles, but the East and West came through about even.

DEDHAM POLO TEAM TO BATTLE NORFOLK

Providence, Aug. 10.—Dedham will meet the crack Boston-Norfolk polo team in the finals for the army and Navy cups in the Point Judith tournament tomorrow, having defeated Myopia, 13 to 6, in the semi-finals. Dedham had a three-goal handicap and so played Myopia at even odds.

Shaw played brilliantly, although covered closely by Burrage. Duncan Clark of Dedham was thrown and his pony fell upon him, but he was only slightly injured and resumed play. Norfolk defeated Myopia 20 to 10.

DEMPSEY READY FOR MISKE GO

Champion Will Start for Michigan on Friday for Labor Day Bout

By H. C. HAMILTON

New York, Aug. 10.—Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion, is putting the tapering-off touches to his training for Billy Miske, whom he will meet for the third time in Benton Harbor, Mich., September 6.

Dempsey probably will do light work today, tomorrow and Thursday, but will break camp in New York Thursday evening and plans to leave for the Michigan resort Friday. Jack Kearns will accompany him.

Sparring partners are no easy thing for the husky champion to dig up. He punches a little too strenuously for the ordinary run of fighters. So it be comes necessary for Dempsey to choose from the better class of boxers.

Bill Tate, the faithful, who stuck with the champion during the rigorous preparations for Jess Willard last Summer at Toledo, will go to Benton Harbor with Dempsey. Panama Joe Gans, a dusky battler who just has started in to worry the best of the welterweights will be the other member of the entourage, according to present plans.

Efforts are being made by Dempsey, Tate and Kearns to induce Jamaica Kid to make the trip, also, but Jamaica has a very good memory and may not consent. Fight fans will recall that he, too, was in Toledo while Dempsey was training and did a large job of receiving punches.

There will be a couple of days layoff for the champion after he finishes here. Then he will start in at Benton Harbor, training in the arena that Floyd Fitzsimmons has built for his fights.

Dempsey is particularly confident that he will remove the name of Miske from among those he couldn't or didn't knock out and then he probably will settle a score with Bill Brennan.

Bill's manager is expected to meet Kearns tomorrow and sign articles for Bill to take a few more on the chin. He stayed seven rounds with Dempsey when they last met and then went down from a smack on the chin that broke his ankle.

DEFOE-BRADY BATTLE DECLARED "NO CONTEST"

Jersey City, N. J., Aug. 10.—Referee Erhardt stopped the bout between Billy Defoe of St. Paul and Ralph Brady of Syracuse in the fourth round and declared it "no contest."

English Expect U. S. Olympic Victory

America is practically conceded a sweeping victory in the Olympic track and field games by England, according to reports from London. An English writer, whose words it is said reflect nation-wide opinion in England, says British athletics are going to Antwerp certain that they are hopelessly behind the Americans in every branch of the game and that they are not even sure that they can score more points than the French. The success of the Americans in sports is attributed to intensive scientific training.

NO DOCTORS FOR THIS ATHLETE

London Veteran of 73 Spurns Medicines—Has His Own System

London, Aug. 10 (by mail).—"A medical crank!"

"A crazy athlete!"

With some such interchange of compliments, Sir James Cantlie, a famous London physician, and Sir Claude Champion de Crespigny, a sportsman of ardent interests, are trying to decide for the benefit of the public whether athletics are injurious to the health.

The dispute started when Sir James Cantlie publicly condemned sea-bathing, particularly before breakfast, as injurious to the heart and the general health.

Sir Claude, who revels in sea bathing at his present age of seventy-three ridiculed the famous physician's dictum, and publicly challenged him to a series of contests, including a forty-mile walk, a long swim, a sculling race and three two-minute rounds of boxing.

DECLINES CHALLENGE.

Sir James, who at sixty-nine is four years the Knd sportsman's junior, declined to take up the challenge.

"Let him come and try my job for a day and see how he likes it," was his reply. "I rise at 4:30 a. m. and have done so for years. I usually write till 8 o'clock, when I breakfast. From then on till 2 I am busy with patients. Five nights a week I lecture from 8 till 9 p. m. In addition I am surgeon to two hospitals."

Sir Claude, who is renowned throughout Britain as a soldier, war correspondent, author, balloonist, boxer and long-distance swimmer, replies that he has no use for doctors and couldn't do their work anyhow, though he claims that he would be quite equal to the physical strain.

"People begin to take extravagant care of themselves too early in life," he says. "On reaching fifty they think they must stop taking much exercise, because it might affect their heart. Coddling themselves in this way, they make senility come twice as quickly as it would if they forget they were supposed to be growing old.

HARD WORK DOES IT.

"My weight is 142 pounds and has remained within a few lbs. the seventies. When I returned from India, I still dive from a height of thirty feet and finish up by also bathing in one of the finest exercises in the world, no matter what Sir James Cantlie may say.

"I never see any doctors. It's a good thing, I suppose, that everyone does not hold my opinions, or else all the doctors would be in the workhouse."

Screen Version Novelized

By Jane McLean

DON JULIAN hesitated before the urbanity of Alvarez. Then he said slowly:

"I insist on a reply."

"I refuse to gratify your curiosity."

Tense silence in the cafe as the eyes of all were focussed on the faces of these two men so calm, so punctilious yet so threatening.

"It is my purpose," went on Julian calmly, "to make your affairs my affairs in so far as they concerned me—Don Alvarez, you insulted my name." He paused for adenial; none was forthcoming.

"I shall not leave it to a mere baby to take up that insult. I take it up now! Will you answer me, Don Alvarez?"

"Yes, after I have killed this fellow I will answer you, Don Julian."

"You will answer me before, Don Alvarez," and swift as light the glove in the clenched hand of Julian lashed across the face of his rival.

A movement of chairs, a hush that was almost tangible. Don Alvarez felt for his sword, his voice was hoarse, his face flooded scarlet.

"Now, now!" he cried. "You are right, I shall not wait. Now, now."

"The sooner the better," said the other coldly.

Friends had gathered about both men; a confused chattering succeeded the quiet. The place was chosen again in the ruins of the church; the time was set for that very evening.

Went With Brother.

Severo went away with his brother begging him to think again and call off this infamous encounter.

He spoke to no purpose. "Suppose you are killed, my brother?"

"And then, have I much to live for?" Against this spirit of fatalism worldly considerations carried little power of persuasion.

Wickersham lingered still in the cottage studio of his friend, departing shortly before sundown, promising to return before day-light and advising plenty of sleep.

"A calm mind is better than a trained arm," he said smiling.

Fate sat on her pedestal and surveyed the three characters in the drama unfolding before her; the poet in his studio lamenting the loss of Don Julian's confidence, grieving over the misinterpretation of his friendly feeling for Teodora, the wife bitterly wounded by her husband's innuendoes and the gossip he believed, the husband trying to right one of the wrongs into which his folly had led him.

Gossip had been slow to impart to the ears of Teodora the comments on her companionship with Ernesto; it was swift to let her learn the happenings at the Cafe Granda.

Tired out, weary but uneasy, she opened the shades and heard the voices of servants. "The master is to fight a duel—the poet—Oh, I knew it would come to that."

She grasped at the side of the door; love for her husband that she imagined had been killed called to her. He must be prevented from carrying out this rash business.

And to save her husband she must reach Ernesto—he would listen to her—where was he? She thought of Wickersham; perhaps he would tell her.

Maria came in answer to her summons, and while the aged servitor was approaching her mistress tried to assume calmness.

"Maria, I want to talk to Captain Wickersham."

"Yes, Carissima."

"You will get him on the telephone?"

"Si, Carissima."

Teodora steadied her voice—while the old woman watched her, wondering. "Ah, Captain Wickersham —yes, this is Senora Gorgas—I have a message to give to—to Ernesto—do you know where he is?"

A silence—a word of thanks—she hung up the receiver hardly noticing the shaking head with which her old nurse had heard the name of the poet.

"Where, go where?" her words were almost sharp.

"Your pardon—no, no—I see I was forward," she shuffled out of the room.

Must Reach Ernesto

Teodora threw a heavy mantilla over her head—at all costs she must reach Ernesto. She could trust Wickersham; she could trust Maria; before she went she slipped the pearl necklace, heirloom from her mother's family around her neck and then conscious that she was risking her reputation in going alone to the isolated home of Ernesto reassured herself that so long as she was trying to save her husband anything would be forgiven.

In the tangled web of misunderstanding that had now enveloped the once happy family in Julian's home, events moved with lightning rapidity. Julian did not return to his house; he preferred, if possible, to keep from Teodora all news of his encounter with Alvarez. In acting for himself instead of allowing the young poet to act for him he was actuated more by a feeling of pride of family than for real regard for the boy.

The little affair viewed with such forebonding by Severo came to pass as easily as a chance meeting on the street. Julian and his brother were the first to arrive—the rays of the sun were already getting low in the West; next arrived a doctor with an assistant and lastly Alvarez with his seconds and doctors.

The adversaries had nothing to say; in silence they faced each other after each had stripped off his coat; in silence they lunged and parried, moving about a small circle and hearing no sound save the clash of steel blades.

Julian was the older man and the less active, the exertion began to tell; Alvarez surveyed him sneeringly keeping his eye as a good fencer should steadily on his foe. Julian's point dropped for an infinitesimal second and Alvarez, stepping forward, thrust his own into the shoulder of his antagonist.

Severo ran forward—Julian's hand was clasped to the wound; he staggered a bit, but did not fall. He waved his brother off.

When Hearts Are Trumps

CHAPTER XLV.

Copyright, 1920, by Star Company.

WHEN several days had passed after the announcement of Barbara's engagement, Cynthia Paige relaxed her vigilance of the mails.

It was not likely that Robert Elliot would write to Barbara, or, if he did, it would be only a conventional note of congratulation.

Of course, Cynthia did not trust him—in a way. But his pride would prevent his sending a love letter to Barbara at this juncture.

So, when the postman's whistle sounded on the afternoon of the day of Daisy's party, Cynthia, resting in her own room, was not listening for it. Neither was Barbara. But, happening to pass by the open front door at that moment the carrier handed her a letter addressed to herself.

She locked herself in her room before opening the envelope, and forced a sneer of contempt to her lips.

"I suppose it is a letter of congratulation," she muttered. "He need not have troubled himself to write it."

She stopped in the middle of the scornful sentence, and, dropping into a chair, read Robert's letter from beginning to end—her face white, her hands trembling. Then she read it over so often that the sentences ceased to mean anything to her. At last she spoke aloud.

"He has loved me all the time—or he is a vile liar. And—heaven help me!—he is not their!"

The tone of his communication convinced her that he was telling the truth. He had written before and she had never received his letters!

What had become of them

An awful possibility passed through her mind, but she thrust it from her as unthinkable. Nobody would be so wicked as to intercept her letters. Probably they had been handed to an office boy to mail, and he had lost them, dropped them on the street. If she had only known!

Yet what if she had? She remembered her uncle and what she owed him.

She Reaches a Decision

"If I had known about Bob I could not have become engaged to John," she whispered. "I could not. And yet I had to. There was no other way."

After a half hour of agonized thought she reached a decision. She would answer this letter now, then destroy it. It would be dishonorable to tell Robert the truth. Yet, surely she might let him know that she was not the fickle creature he must believe her to be.

Seating herself at her desk, she wrote with unsteady fingers:

"Dear Bob: Thank you for your letter. This is the only one I have received from you since I last saw you.

"But it would have made no difference, in one way. Only I did not understand. But now I do.

"I know you are my friend, and that you wish me happiness. I shall always remember that.

Goodby—and God bless you! I am glad you said that to me, too.

"BAR"

Surely there could be no harm in this brief message! There was not a word of disloyalty to John—not a suggestion that she loved Bob better than the man she had promised to marry.

Once more she read Robert's letter. She could not keep it. She dare not!

If it were in her possession she would be tempted to read it when she was unhappy. It would be disloyal to do this—as now she belonged to another, man—or would soon.

She must not tear the paper into bits and drop these into her waste-basket—for she would be conscious of their presence as long as they lay there.

With a stifled moan she pressed the letter to her lips, kissing it passionately.

Then, as if afraid to linger, she hurried from the room and down stairs.

The Letter Burned

Delia looked up, surprised, as the girl entered the kitchen.

"Why, Miss Barbara—aren't you well? You're so pale!"

"Yes, I'm well," Barbara replied with a forced smile. "I just came in here to burn some papers I've finished with."

"But you don't look well, let me make you a cup of tea," the kind-hearted maid urged.

Miss Cynthia's tea-caddy was kept in the dining room. Barbara remembered this in a flash.

"Thank you, Delia," she said eagerly. "I would like a cup of tea. I did not eat much luncheon this noon. While you are in the dining room, you might get me a few crackers out of the box in the sideboard."

"Sure I will," Delia acquiesced.

The instant the maid left the kitchen, Barbara snatched up the stovelifter and took the top from the first hole in the range.

A bed of red hot coals glowed sweetly. Into these she dropped her precious letter, and replaced the lid that she might not see it burn.

When Delia returned she found her young mistress standing by the window, her back to the room. The maid did not see that "Miss Barbara's" eyes were full of tears.

"Your papers is all burned entirely to an ash," the domestic observed as she lifted one of the stove lids to put the kettle where it would boil quickly.

Hastily, Barbara stepped forward and gazed into the glowing coals where quivered what looked like the flimsy sheets of sheets of paper. She could not know that two other letters of Robert's had been burned to "an ash" in this same spot.

Bachelor Girl's Reflections

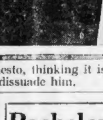
By HELEN ROWLAND

Copyright, 1920, by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

SOMETIMES it looks to a woman as though a man takes up golf just in order to have something to get "swearing mad" about.

* * *

Nobody who has not been snap-shotted in a bathing suit by a relentless Summer kodak fiend knows how terribly a woman can be "misrepresented" in this life.



Perhaps if a bored husband could watch his wife act all through a five-reel movie drama without hearing her utter a word, he would fall in love with her all over again. It isn't his eyes, but his ears, that grow so weary after marriage.

* * *

A man can sympathize with everything except a woman's passion for suffering. After the third time he has seen her weep, her tears have no power to move him—except to move him toward the door.

* * *

If all the complaints uttered by husbands at the breakfast table of the average Summer resort could be consolidated into one vast wail, they would drown the music of the spheres and make Wagner turn over in his grave with envy.

* * *

Why only "filet mignon"? EVERYTHING is so "mignon" nowadays! Why not the "marriage mignon," the "apartment mignon," the "dog mignon," the "income mignon," "sugar mignon"—and so on, ad infinitum?

* * *

The only way in which the average wife learns anything about her husband's real thoughts and opinions is by gathering them from his friends; a clock that strikes only the half-hours is frank and communicative beside a man in the bosom of his family.

* * *

When a man says "Let's forgive and forget!" he means that if the girl will do the forgiving he will do the forgetting.

* * *

Alas, when a husband does anything from the "highest and noblest motives," why does it always turn out to be something foolish or unreasonable?

A Wise Lion

The proprietor of a menagerie related that one of his lions once had a thorn taken out of his paw by a French lieutenant in Algeria. The lion afterward ran over the list of officers belonging to the regiment of his benefactor and, out of gratitude, devoured all of supper made to the lieutenant, who thereby found himself promoted to the rank of colonel.

Household Suggestions

For fixing on small pieces of wood chipped off furniture, use the white of an egg.

* * *

When making fruit pies, put in the sugar when the dish is half full and not on top. If you add the sugar last the pastry will be heavy.

* * *

When the hands have become soft and stained by using soda and hot water, rub them with common salt and it will help to make them smooth again.

* * *

A quick and effective way to clean currants when making cakes is to put the fruit into a colander with a sprinkling of flour, and rub around a few times with your hand. If a colander is not at hand use a clean cloth.

* * *

If a lamp should become upset and the burning oil runs over, do not throw water on it, but use flour, earth, sand or ashes. Fling it first on the foremost flames and go backward to the place the flames started from. This will at once prevent the flames from spreading further.

* * *

An old steel pen, if kept in your ink-pot to absorb the acid, will make the pens in daily use wear better.

* * *

A little pipe clay dissolved in water for washing linens cleans the dirtiest cloths thoroughly with about half the labor, and a saving of a quarter the soap. The clothes will be improved in color, as if they had been bleached, as the pipe clay mixes with the soap, and makes the hardest water as soft as rain water.

When a light should become upset and the burning oil runs over, do not throw water on it, but use flour, earth, sand or ashes. Fling it first on the foremost flames and go backward to the place the flames started from. This will at once prevent the flames from spreading further.

Give growing children Kraft Cheese

BOYS and GIRLS of growing age require "strong" food, food that builds good bone and muscle. They grow fast and burn up lots of energy so they need easily digestible and highly concentrated foods.

Cheese, good cheese like Kraft's Cheese in tins, is an ideal food ration for growing children and they love it. Every child enjoys a delicious cheese sandwich and that cheese sandwich is equivalent in nutriment to three times its weight in lean beef.

Kraft Cheese in tins is the new and right way to buy cheese. It is the cleanest, safest and most economical way to buy cheese. Kraft Cheese is put up in 8 varieties — Cheddar, Pimento, Chile, Rarebit, Swiss, Roquefort, Camembert and Limburger. At all dealers.

KRAFT CHEESE

Rather Mixed

The linotype operators often play pranks with what a reporter tries to say—as, for example, in this extract from a newspaper: "The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a dress of pale bridegroom. She was attended by the hat, and carried a bouquet the gift of the pink taffeta silk and a large dark-blue bridegroom's two little nieces." No wonder the large dark-blue bridegroom turned red!

Coconut Oil Fine For Washing Hair

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo, which is pure and entirely greaseless, is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces should last everyone in the family for months.

ABOUT OUR GOOD FRIEND Bates

Copyright, 1920, by The Ledger Syndicate

BATES
VARIATIONS — Beatty, Batson, Betson.
RACIAL ORIGIN—English.
SOURCE—A given name.

THE foregoing family names are all developments of the given name of Bartholomew, a name the sound and unusual spelling of which just naturally lent itself to violent variations from the original form, particularly when it is remembered that in the middle ages the individual writer came pretty near to spelling as he pleased.

As a given name Bartholomew is of Hebrew origin. Like other Biblical names, it was widespread in medieval England, where the Anglo-Saxon trend toward short forms of names, however, brought it down to the popular form of "Bat."

As the family name developed from it it took the various forms of "Batson," "Beatson," "Batson," "Beatyson," etc.

The droppings of the ending "son" from "Beatyson" left Beaty or Beatty and "Bateson" minus the "on" became Bates. The variation Betson is due undoubtedly to a change in spelling after it had become a family name. Were it not for the fact the woman's name "Betty" is a comparatively modern derivation from Elizabeth, and did not take place until after the period in which family names were formed, there might be grounds for the belief that in some instances at least Betson is a development of "Betty's son."

It is interesting to note some of the variations of the given name of Bartholomew, for they show the widest dissimilarity in form. In German appear the forms Bartold and Mewes; in Bavarian, Barteime, Wawel, Walsel and Wahm; in Russian, Vartolomei; in Lithuanian, Baltromejus, and in Illyrian, Vratolomije, all of them forms which very few persons in this country would think of connecting with Bartholomew.

Between 1630 and 1640, leading members of the Bates family in America came to the new country from England, and settled in Boston and vicinity. George Bates, a "thacker," was made a freemen in Boston in 1636. William, married in Charlestown, arrived here about 1635, at 17 years. James, Clement, and Edward, were three other Bates, making the five who came in the 10 years mentioned. Of these, Edward Bates was the ancestor of the old American family of Bates of Weymouth, being made an Elder, soon after he removed from Boston to Weymouth. He is recorded as a "man servant to Thomas Leverett" in early Boston records. But, at his death, in Weymouth, he left a substantial property, and had filled about every public office in the gift of his townspeople. One of the first settlers, his name is honored in Weymouth so long as records last and people can remember.

TRADING QUIET, GAINS SMALL

Oils and Steels Make the Largest Gains; Rails and Equipments Rule High

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor

Stocks were strong at noon in New York, but gains averaged small. Oils and steels had advanced the most while rails and equipments ruled higher. Motors were irregular. The market was comparatively quiet, first hour transactions totalling about 182,000 shares. Call loans renewed at 7 per cent.

Sterling exchange rates were a little lower in most instances at the opening. Quotations were demand sterling $3.61⅞, off ⅜ cent; francs $.0715, up $.0001; lire $.0510, off $.0002; marks $.0212, off $.0002.

Among strongest stocks were American Bosch Magneto, Central Leather, Chandler, Crucible, Mexican Petroleum, Pan-American, National Enameling, United Fruit and Industrial Alcohol. They were up from one to more than two points at the end of the morning.

Weakest issues included American Sugar, Maxwell, National Aniline, Tobacco Products and White Motor. They were off a point or more.

BETTER TONE AT OPENING.

There was a better tone at the opening today than yesterday, a majority of active issues going up instead of down. Price changes were small as a rule. Two especially weak stocks were Maxwell and National Aniline, the former selling at its lowest in three years on its first transaction. The market had a quieter start than on Monday and traders were not so nervous. But they continued to view the situation from a bear standpoint and short covering by certain interests provided the market with qualified strength. Steels and equipments had the most support for this reason, while Reading made the best showing among rails on technical account. Mexican Petroleum and Pan American were strongest oils, and, together with Crucible, led the list for gains during the first thirty minutes.

BEARS MORE CAUTIOUS.

Bears did not resume their raiding tactics at the start, and their caution was due to some extent to signs in late trading on Monday that important financial interests were lending stocks some support. Liquidation had got to a stage where it could not be viewed with indifference in high quarters. The market is heavily oversold and ought to respond to considerable degree to any favorable development. There is not much hope of cheerful news from Europe, however. While another great war is talked of as a possibility, it is understood that international banking interests do not expect any such catastrophe. Not only are populations of allied countries opposed to another resort to arms, but the credit strain is world wide and those holding purse strings are believed to be advocating pacification instead of belligerency. When both politicians and bankers favor peace, it is hard to start much of a fight.

OFFER 7 P. C. BONDS OF MOBILE COTTON MILLS

William A. Read & Co. are offering $1,500,000 first mortgage 7 per cent bonds of the Mobile Cotton Mills, which manufacture cotton cloth and are owned by the Standard Textile Products Co. The latter corporation is the largest producer in this country of lightweight oil cloths, leather cloth and washable wall coverings and it unconditionally guarantees both the principal and interest of these bonds.

The bonds of the Mobile Cotton Mills are due serially 1921 and 1930 and the total net assets of this company as of June 26, 1920, were $3,331,485, or over 200 per cent of the amount of the first mortgage bonds, while net quick assets were $1,858,513.

Copper Market Still Dull

No change in the copper market was reported at the beginning of this week. Domestic demand for metal is very light while foreign inquiry does not indicate much business from that quarter. While quoting 19 cents a pound, large producers show a disposition to accept 18¾, which is the quotation by smaller producers. Outside sellers offer limited amounts at 18⅝ cents.

Corporation Earnings

Gross earnings by the Colorado Southern Road increased $149,104 during July, and for seven months the gain was $2,097,708.

For the fourth week of July the Grand Trunk's gross amounted to $3,887,569, an increase of $708,284.

For the first half of this year the International Motor Truck Corporation reports net profits after charges and Federal Taxes of $2,108,421, which is equal after preferred dividends to $5.64 a share on common.

June gross of the Erie system increased $1,047,547, but it reported a net operating deficit of $1,214,568 as compared with net income of $304,427 in the corresponding month last year. For six months its gross increased $4,270,614 and its net operating deficit increased $3,118,137.

Dividend Declarations

International Harvester Co. declared stock dividend of 12½ per cent. on common, payable September 15 to stock of record August 20.

Manati Sugar Co. declared quarterly dividend of 2½ per cent. on common, payable September 1 on stock of record August 17.

PRICES MIXED IN BOSTON

Local Market Irregular and Narrow During the Forenoon; Heavy Tone to Curb

The price movement was irregular on the Boston Exchange at the opening of the market, early gains and losses being about evenly balanced. This condition remained during the forenoon. If any trend could be observed, it was toward a lower level. Trading was of less volume than for the previous forenoon and fluctuations were narrow. Old Dominion and National Leather sold at new 1920 lows. Waltham Watch dropped more than six points on its first sale in ten days or more. Among weakest issues were International Products and Pond Creek, they receding a point or more.

Smaller losses were sustained by Copper Range, Old Dominion, Libby, Waldorf, Bigheart, Eastern Steamship, Carson Hill, United Shoe, Island Creek and American Woolen preferred.

Fractional gains were made by American Telephone, Mayflower, Old Colony, New Haven, United Fruit, Mexican Investment, Gray & Davis and Atlas Tack.

CURB MARKET HEAVY.

The Curb had a heavy tone at the outset, and it did not alter in that respect during the forenoon. It was as quiet as usual. Eureka and Mutual continued to show activity, and both began with losses. They were strong the day before. Among weak stocks around the start were Bagdad, Black Hawk, Chief and Daddy.

At the end of the hour Eureka had recovered and was up two cents at twenty-five cents and Black Hawk was off eight cents at fifty-five cents. Daddy had declined three-eighths to one.

BOSTON FINANCIAL NOTES.

The nominating committee has reported nominations for officers of the Boston Stock Exchange and they will be voted upon at the coming annual meeting. The ticket reads: President, Frank W. Remick; vice-president, George E. Barrington; treasurer, Sidney Chase. Members of governing committee (terms expire 1922), William F. Bartholomew, James Dean, Jere A. Coal Production

Bituminous coal production in this country during the last week in July totalled 9,327,000 net tons, a decrease of 1,523,000 tons as compared with the output of the last week before the strike. Anthracite production is estimated at 1,874,000 tons, a 104,000 tons increase.

The Restless Sex

By Robert W. Chambers

"IN the Prophet's Paradise," said Cleland, laughing, "there's no marriage or giving in marriage. Will you take a chance, pretty dryad? All the girls are on an equal footing in the Paradise of Mahomet, and we Caliphs just saunter from houri to houri and tell each that she's the only one!"

"Saunter this way, please," cried another youthful dryad, adjusting the wreath of water lilies so that she could more effectively use her dark eyes on him.

Belter whispered:

"They're from the new show, 'Can You Beat It?' just opened to record business. Better pick one while the picking's good. Come on up!"

But he failed to detect any vast and radical difference between the world and the three-quarter world. The area of square inches of bare skin displayed by a young matron of his own sort matched the satin nakedness of some animated ornament from the Follies.

The Unattainable.

As he stood surveying the gorgeous throng he seemed to be subtlely aware of a tension, an occult strain keying to the breaking point each eager, laughing woman he looked at. The scented atmosphere was heavy with it; the running outpour of the violins was charged with it; it was something more than temporary excitement, more than the reckless gaiety of the moment; it was something that had become part of these women—a vast deep-bitten restlessness possessing them soul and body.

Watching the golden human butterflies whirling around him swept into eddies by thunderous gusts of music, he thought involuntarily of those filmy winged creatures that dance madly in millions and millions over northern rivers and are swept in sparkling clouds amid the rainbow spray of cataracts out into the evening splendor of annihilation.

He met a pretty woman he knew—had thought that he had known once—and reddened slightly at the audacity of her Grecian raiment. Her husband—a Harvard man he had known—was with her, in eyeglasses and a Grecian helmet—Ajax the Greater, he explained.

Lingered Together

They lingered to exchange a word; she beat time to the music with sandalled foot, a feverish brilliancy in eyes and cheeks.

"The whole world," said Cleland, "seems strung too tightly. I noticed it abroad, too. There's a tension that's bound to break; the skies of the whole earth are full of lightning. Something is going to blow up."

"Hope it won't be the stock market," said the man. "I don't get you, Cleland—you always were literary."

"He means war," said his wife, restlessly fanning her flushed cheeks. "Or suffrage. Which do you mean, Mr. Cleland?"

"You've got all you want—practically—haven't you?" he asked.

"Practically. It's a matter of a year or so—the vote."

"What will you do next?" he inquired, smiling.

"Heaven knows, but we've simply got to keep doing something," she said. "What a ghastly bore to attain everything! If you men really love us, for goodness sake keep on tyrannizing over us and giving us something to fight for!"

She laughed and blew him a kiss as her husband encircled her Grecian waist and steered her out into the fox-trotting throng, her flimsy draperies fluttering like the wind-blown tunic of a Tanagra dancing figure.

The stamp and jingling din of Nautch girls rang in his ears as he turned away and looked over the shifting crowd.

Everywhere he recognized people he had met or heard about, men eminent or notorious in their vocations, actors, painters, writers, architects, musicians—men of science, lawyers, promoters, officers of industry, commissioned or non-commissioned; the gayer element of the stage were radiantly in evidence, usually in the dancing embrace of Broad and Wall streets; artistic masculine worth and youth pranced proudly with femininity of social attainment; the beautiful unplaced were there in daring deshabille, captivating solid domestic character which had come there wifeless and receptive.

Suddenly he saw Stephanie. She was leaning back against the side of the arena, besieged by a ring of men. Gales of laughter swept her brilliant entourage of gods and demons, fauns and heroes, all crowded about to pay their eager court. And Stephanie, laughing back at them from the centre of the three-fold circle, her arms crossed behind her, stood leaning against the side of the amphitheatre under a steady rain of rose petals droped on her by some young fellows in the box above her.

Through this rosy rain, through the three-fold ring of glittering gods, she caught sight of Cleland—met his gaze with a soft, quick cry of delight.

Out through the circle of chagrinned Olympians she sprang on sandalled feet, not noticing these protesting suitors; and with both lovely, rounded arms outstretched, her jewelled hands fell into Cleland's, clasping them tightly in an ecstacy of possession.

"I couldn't find you," she explained breathlessly. "I was so dreadfully afraid you hadn't come! Isn't it all magnificent. Isn't it wonderful! Did you see the pageant? Did you ever see anything as splendid? Slip your arm around me; we can walk better in this crush——" passing her own bare arm confidently over his shoulder and falling into step with him.

Compliments Exchanged

"I saw you in the pageant," he said, encircling with his arm the silken body-vestment of her slender waist.

"Did you? Did you see Helen and me come out of our golden chrysalids? Was it pretty?"

"Charming and unexpected. You're quite the most beautiful thing on the floor tonight."

"Really, Jim, do you think so? You darling boy, to say it! I'm having a wonderful time. How handsome you are in your dress of a young Oriental warrior.

"It's the Fourth Caliph, Ali," he explained. "I had this costume made in Paris."

"It's bewitching, Jim. You are good looking—you adorable brother of mine. Do you like my paste emeralds? You don't think I'm too scantily clad, do you?"

"That seems to be the general fashion——"

"Oh, Jim! There are lots of others much more undressed. Besides, one simply has to be historical and accurate or one is taken for an ignoramus. If I'm to impersonate the Sakya girl, Yassodhara, before she became Lord Buddha's wife, I must wear what she probably wore. Don't you see?"

"Perfectly," he said, laughing. "But you of the artistic and unconventional guilds ought to leave the audacious costumes to your models. But, of course, that's too much to ask of you."

"Indeed it is!" she said gaily. "If some of us think we're rather nicely made why shouldn't we dare a little artistically—in the name of beauty and of art? * * * Oh, Jim! it's the tango they're beginning. Will you—with me?"

They danced together whatever came; Stephanie, like a child fearful of being abandoned, kept one slim jewelled hand fast hold of his sleeve or girdle when they were not dancing. To one and all who came to argue or present fancied prior claims she turned a deaf ear and laughing lips, listening to no pleading, no claims.

Are Marks Worth Buying?

A cold, dispassionate analysis of German financial conditions and a discussion on their foreign aspect.

Will Marks ever return to normal value?

What will be the ultimate effect of the unrestrained issuance of German paper?

How will the enormous payments required of Germany by the Allied Governments affect the value of the Mark?

Will Germany be obliged to repudiate her obligations?

These questions are of vital importance to all contemplating the purchase of German money. We have prepared a careful analysis, written by an expert, of the conditions affecting Germany and her political and financial future.

COAL SITUATION GETTING BETTER

Possibility of Famine the Coming Winter Gradually Being Eliminated

Washington, Aug. 10.—Possibility of a coal famine in the Northeast, Northwest and other sections during the coming Winter is gradually being eliminated as a result of activities of government agencies and operators committees, according to J. D. A. Morrow, vice-president of the National Coal Association, who returned to Washington after a ten-day inspection trip.

"The coal situation is getting better," said Mr Morrow. "Reports here are that production is rapidly approaching normal output in Illinois and Indiana. In the Eastern districts splendid results are being accomplished by the operators and the railways in the effort to obtain increased shipments from the mines. It is estimated that production of this week will approach 11,000,000 tons.

SHIPMENTS BEHIND SCHEDULE.

"Movement to the Lakes is not yet up to schedule. From the inception of the Lake order on July 26, up to August 7, the total shipments were slightly behind the schedule. From the inception of the Lake order on July 26 up to August 7, the total shipments were slightly behind the schedule number of cars to be dumped at Lake Erie daily. This deficiency, however, was due not so much to lack of cars as congestion on the road. This is now being rapidly remedied, and regular shipments up to requirements may be expected.

"The situation as to New England is distinctly encouraging. The New England wholesale coal men have organized a committee to work in conjunction with the operators and the railroad executives. As an outcome of their efforts coal is moving to tidewater ports fully up to the 1,250,000 tons called for under the New England priority schedule.

WAR ON SPECULATORS.

"The sore spot remaining in the soft coal situation is the speculation in coal. This problem is being attacked by the National Coal Association through a special committee, which has developed a preliminary plan to deal with the speculative misuse of transportation facilities in the tidewater movement. Without question the speculative situation can be met if the railways will join in making effective the committee's plan when it is worked out."

GIVE MUSICAL COMEDY TO AID CHAPEL FUND

St. Joseph's Dramatic Association of Somerville, assisted by several young women of Jamaica Plain and Plymouth, will give the musical comedy, "Oh, Priscilla," in the Old Colony Theatre in Plymouth tonight. The proceeds will go toward the fund for the new Catholic chapel at White Horse Beach. Somerville and Plymouth people are expected to attend in large numbers. There also will be present many Boston and Worcester people. "Oh, Priscilla" has been voted a clever and tuneful show by Greater Boston audiences, before whom it has been presented by the Somerville players. Among those taking part will be James G. Hourihan, Richard F. Coogan, Frank J. Sullivan, Harry J. McIntire, Mary V. Quinn, Mary D. Knowles and Josephine Kelley. The need of a chapel at White Horse Beach has been felt more than ever this Summer, as scores of Catholic families have established cottages there.

Brennan Accuses Tague

Congressman Tague was accused of dodging the prohibition amendment and with being absent when it was passed in Congress, at the rally held by James J. Brennan of Charlestown, Democratic candidate for Congress in the Tenth District at Charlestown. Brennan stated he was an anti-Wilson candidate.

TWO RESCUED FROM FIRE

Mother and Daughter Carried From Home at Somerville Blaze

Mrs. Daniel O'Keefe and her five-year-old daughter, Marie, were carried from their smoke-filled apartment on the third floor of the house at No. 1 Beckwith circle, Somerville, today, when fire broke out on the first floor. The blaze, caused by a defective gas stove, drove the remainder of the occupants to the street in their night clothing.

The first floor was occupied by the family of John B. Fione, the second by that of James A. Campbell and the third by the O'Keefe family. The woman and child, terrified by the smoke, were carried to safety by Firemen David Nixon and James O'Harra of Engine 1.

The damage was estimated at $200.

ASKS COMMERCIAL AGENTS FOR QUEBEC

Montreal, Aug. 10.—Le Matin, the new French-Canadian daily, in arguing for the appointment of agents for the Province of Quebec in all important commercial centres the world over, says for lack of commercial agents France was before the war reputed to be decadent, whilst "thanks to its colossal advertising, principally announced by the Hearst newspapers, Germany seemed to the Yankees a giant beside a pygmy. The war and the heroism displayed by French soldiers were necessary to re-establish the facts. But better still is an advertisement that costs floods of money than an advertisement that costs floods of blood."

If you buy $100 worth or more, this month, at this big Uptown Store.

Why We Can't
Offer you a furniture sale this year. It is this, that conditions in this line are the same as last August. Manufacturers have constantly advanced their prices until today our regular Uptown value-giving prices are lower than the manufacturers'. Therefore, how could we be honest with you and with ourselves and tell you of an August sale, when new goods today cost so much more? Consider this fact carefully, look at all sale values, then see the values this big Uptown store offers you in the regular way, and you will see yourself what a saving it is to trade at this big Uptown store.

August Stimulator

Three Pretty Pets and a Nice Story From Japan

Everybody knows about the three Japanese Monkeys. You can buy them in the stores. One has its hand on its mouth, it SPEAKS no evil. One has its hands at its ears, it HEARS no evil. One covers its eyes, it SEES no evil.

Little Japanese children are told: "Develop your Minds far above the monkey, but, in kindness of Heart, keep these little monkeys always in your mind. Do not criticise others, SPEAK no evil. Do not listen to cruel words or gossip, HEAR no evil. Keep your eyes and mind turned away from what is bad, SEE no evil."

For Japanese children and for high morality, the three little monkeys do good work. Not so admirable are three little American monkeys, charming little pets of the great American power, sometimes called "the Trust," better described as the power of financial teamwork.

These little monkeys, friends, servants, darlings, and DEPENDENTS of the Trust, our able cartoonist, McCay, shows you on this page.

John Wanamaker tells you in one of his admirable editorials about colored delegates that hadn't voted because, as one put it, "we are waiting for the zoological moment."

For the big gentleman who doesn't want the people to READ the truth or HEAR the truth or SEE the truth, the "zoological moment" arrives when he has gathered together in his service the three little specimens of zoology that Mr. McCay shows you in this powerful, useful cartoon.

You all know these three monkeys, the editor who knows that the people are being robbed, but won't tell because it pays him to be quiet.

The Governor, who, if he would listen, would hear of public plunder. He shuts his ears and talks about "irresponsible clamor."

The judge, apparently profoundly meditating on the law, but carefully shutting his eyes to the rights of the people, and planning the best way of giving, with plausible, monkey-like, judicial solemnity, the decision that the trusts want.

You all know these three little specimens of corporation zoology. For they thrive, get fat and die rich in almost every State of the Union.

The difficult question is, What kind of monkey powder can the people concoct to kill off these vermin? It hasn't yet been invented.

On the contrary, YOU VOTERS are going now into national and State elections in which YOU play a part in the trusts' "Zoological Moment," for, thanks to the trusts' three pet monkeys, you, the voters, are made "the goat."

Let's Be Glad We're Healthy

These are days when the perusal of the society column fills us with

A feeling of sadness and longing
That is not akin to pain,
And resembles sorrow only
As the mist resembles the rain.

The warmth and the joy of Summer are in the air and fields, mountains and seashore call alluringly to those that dwell in the cities. Then, as we languidly pick up our newspapers, we read:

"The British Ambassador, Sir Auckland Geddes, left Washington today for the coast of Maine, accompanied by H. V. Tennant, of the embassy staff."

And,

"William Rennult and his daughter are at the Chateau Lake Louise after a tour of the Canadian Rockies."

And a host of other items recording the sojourn of the lucky ones in the places where we all would like to be. Imagine a daily column of items such as this:

"John Spiffins has given up his position as night watchman for the Consolidated Gas Co. and is spending the month of August driving a truck. Mrs. Spiffins is still employed in the laundry room of the Copley Plaza."

Or,

"Dinty Moore is at the Touraine for the season. He carries trunks upstairs when the elevator isn't working."

No, this is not Bolshevism or anarchism or any other form of discontent. It is just plain human nature. No one envies the rich their weddings, their feasts or any of their vain displays. We can all get married and we can all eat enough to get indigestion. But when the month of August falls upon the cities and we plod through our daily grind, thinking of trees and cool breezes and the sea breaking upon sandy beaches—oh, boy! it requires SOME strength of mind!

DON'T HOOK UP WITH A WILDCAT

Your idea of getting a nest egg for old age is by way of making a small investment which shall yield mammoth returns.

You are on the lookout for this golden egg, so you fail to study some of the many kinds of investments which bring in fair profit, but keep the principal safe.

Would it not be wiser to put money in ten small investments, safeguarded with small but sure dividends, rather than one large one which promises big returns but with an element of chance looming large?

It is a matter of record that most men between the ages of forty and fifty either make or break financially.

At this age men of frugal habits usually have some money to invest and usually have acquired some ideas in regard to choice of investment.

If this knowledge is of the safe and sane sort, they will be guided by it and likely they will do well.

But the plunger of this age should beware, for there are plenty of promoters of wildcat schemes who have enough knowledge of psychology to locate prospective victims.

More Truth Than Poetry

Why Howl for Changes?

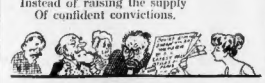
By S. E. KISER

I HOPE they'll let things ride along,
And that the politicians
Will not become too rash, nor strong
Enough to change conditions.
I like things as they are just now,
And, if you care to listen,
I'll tell you why it is, and how
My future seems to glisten.

THE boss informed me yesterday
That he had no objection
To giving me a raise of pay,
But said, in this connection,
That nothing could be done unless
His profits kept on growing;
I'm booked for future happiness
If things go as they're going.

SHE tells me that she's much inclined
To like my proposition;
But also in her case I find
It's "only on condition."
My present income, it appears
Has caused her hesitation;
I'm hoping no disturbing fears
May spread throughout the nation.

I'M praying that the crops won't fail,
That trade will keep increasing,
That peace and quiet may prevail,
Our progress be unceasing.
And down, say I, with all who try
To scatter dark predictions
Instead of raising the supply
Of confident convictions.



NOT INTERESTING TO HIM

If you know of a place where wine can still be bought for $15 a quart, why waste time mentioning it to a man who works on a salary?

NO CHANCE TO BE MISTAKEN

"What makes you think your son is in love?"

"In his room this morning I found three pieces of paper on which he had been trying to write poetry, mentioning 'the stars above' and 'forever and aye.'"

Letters to the Editor

An Appreciation

Editor Boston American:

Nowadays when there is so much talk going on about railroads, railroad workers, etc., and the attendant complaints and "slams," I would like to say a few words of appreciation of the service given by one of our railroads—the Boston & Maine.

Before I go any further, I wish it understood that I am not a stockholder in the B. & M., nor an employe, neither have I any relatives or friends in the employ of the road. I am writing this simply in the interests of fair play and justice.

I have been a daily commuter from Boston to West Medford for the past three years, and while I realize that comparisons are always odious, still I cannot help but compare the quality of service given on the Boston & Maine with the service on many street railways. In the first place, there seems to be a total absence of the "Public be d——d" policy one frequently observes in large public corporations. Here one meets with unfailing courtesy on every hand, from ticket-sellers, information clerks, train announcers, and especially from the conductors and trainmen, who are an exceptionally dignified and gentlemanly class of men.

Last Winter when transportation facilities were crippled everywhere, the Boston & Maine Railroad kept up its service, and managed to run trains when other lines gave up the task as hopeless. Through it all there was a noticeable spirit of co-operation with the public, which should have merited public thanks at the time.

As to the increase in wages of railroad employes, any railroad worker can tell you that the so-called "fabulous wages" story is a myth. Most of them would have been satisfied with the "average" wage they are said to receive—but do not. I think the majority are to be highly commended for their patience in waiting for action on their just and reasonable demands. They certainly deserve it, every one of them, and I for one, if it is necessary, will not object to paying a few extra cents as my share towards giving them what they deserve. The service is worth it.

AND THEY held a meeting.
AND THREW him out.
AND I can remember.
THAT BACK at home.
IN THE Band of Hope.
WHERE WE had to swear.
WE'D NEVER smoke.

THERE WAS a boy.
A WICKED boy.
WITH MULLEN leaves.

AND AFTER meetings.
OF THE Band of Hope.
ON FRIDAY nights.
WE USED to go.
WITH THIS wicked boy.
TO THE old church sheds.

AND THOSE who could.
WITHOUT GETTING sick.
WOULD SMOKE the pipe.
AND THERE came a night.
WHEN THE wicked boy.
WAS SMOKING the pipe.
AND WE were waiting.
AND THE curate came.
AND LOOKED in the shed.
AND WE all of us ran.
BUT HE caught the boy.
WHO HAD the pipe.
AND HE was expelled.

AND AFTER that.
THE REST of us.
WERE VERY careful.
ABOUT WHAT we did.
AND WHERE we did it.
AND THE wicked boy.
WHO HAD been expelled.
KEPT GETTING worse.
AND OF all the boys.
HE WAS the one.
WHO REALLY needed.

I THANK you.

BUSINESS AND LOVE DO NOT MIX

By Beatrice Fairfax

"I WORK at the switchboard in a big apartment house," writes C. N. "And there is a young man who lives in the house with his folks. He goes in and out very often and always smiles and says a few words. What I want to know is how I can find out whether he likes me. And how can I show him that I am really in love with him? With all my heart I beg you to help me."

Well—C. N.—I hope I am going to help you, not as you wish, by showing you a method of making the young man fall in love with you, but to a practical view of the situation and your own romantic self.

First of all, my dear, under the conditions everywhere prevalent in the world we live in, if a man is in love with a girl, and isn't so shy as to be a stage character instead of a "regular fellow," he shows his feelings pretty clearly.

A smile and a pleasant word to an employe in the building where he chances to live mean nothing more than that the youth you admire is a courteous and agreeable young man. If the "girl at the switchboard" happened to be a homely creature, or a sweet old lady, he ought still be pleasant to her, partly to insure good service and the personal touch that makes for it, partly because it would be something less than human not to greet someone you see every day and talk to often in a matter of business.

Aren't there plenty of other folks in the building where you work who greet you pleasantly? Is there any reason why you should annoy with your romantic fancies someone who probably hasn't a bit of personal interest in you?

Don't you realize that you actually endanger your job by taking unfair advantage of it to further your own desires? You might set people in the building to fancying that you slighted them for your favorite. You might start an avalanche of gossip to roll down and overwhelm you. You might put wrong ideas about yourself and your forwardness into the mind of the man whose liking you want to win.

There's nothing more harmful to the woman in business than for her to use her business opportunities to create romantic opportunities.

ESTIMATING FORCE OF FALLING BODIES

By Garrett P. Serviss

"If we know the velocity and weight of a falling body just before it strikes the ground, how can the force of the impact be calculated?—E. P., Chicago."

THE momentum (quantity of motion) would be found by multiplying the velocity in feet per second by the mass (weight) in pounds, or the velocity in centimeters per second by the mass in grammes.

Thus, if the velocity were 320 feet per second at the instant of striking and the weight 100 pounds, the momentum would amount to 320x100, or 32,000 units. But for such purposes as you probably are thinking of units of momentum would not serve. You want to know the units of energy, i. e., the working force of the blow. To obtain this multiply the momentum by half the velocity, or, to follow the usual formula, take half the product of the mass multiplied by the square of the velocity.

Working this out with the figures above adopted we have 32,000x160, or what gives the same result, 320x320x100 divided by 2. Whichever method we use we get as result 5,120,000 "absolute" units of energy as the working equivalent of the 32,000 units of momentum.

We next turn these 5,120,000 absolute energy units into "gravitational" units, or foot-pounds, by dividing by 32, which is the approximate numerical value in feet per second of the intensity of the earth's gravity, a quantity represented in scientific calculations by the letter "g."

Must Know Velocity

Making this division we get 160,000 foot-pounds. Now, a horsepower is equivalent to 550 foot-pounds, so that the force of the blow of our 100-pound mass, striking the ground with a velocity of 320 feet per second, would be about equivalent to 291 horsepower expended in one second.

By knowing the time occupied in the fall you could ascertain the foot-pound equivalent of the momentum more expeditiously. But the time of fall can always be calculated if you know the final velocity, for you have only to divide that velocity by 32 (the acceleration imparted by gravity in every successive second) in order to get the number of seconds that the body has been falling.

In the case in hand the final velocity is 320 feet per second, and dividing this by 32 we have 10 seconds as the time of fall. Now multiply the momentum by half the time, or by 5, and you have 160,000, which is the same number we found by the other process for the number of foot-pounds of energy generated by the blow.

This subject of momentum and energy is full of unsuspected interest or of intellectual romance. By impact momentum is transferred from one body to another. If two bodies having equal momentum meet, going in opposite directions, they bring one another to rest, and the energy of their motion is transformed into molecular vibration or heat which may be so intense as to turn the solid bodies into vapor.

Measure Momentum by Mass

Since momentum is measured by mass, multiplied by velocity, a very small body may have as much momentum as a very large one provided that the small body has sufficiently greater velocity than the large one.

Thus it would be possible for a cannon ball to stop the earth if it could move with such a velocity so great that the product of its velocity by its mass equalled the product of the earth's velocity by the earth's mass—and further provided that the ball did not pass straight through the earth, thus giving up but a part of its momentum.

Take two bullets of equal size, one composed of iron and the other of gold, and fire them with the same speed; the momentum of the gold bullet would be about two and one-half times that of the iron bullet, because that is the ratio of the weight of the gold to the weight of the iron. On the other hand, it would require two and one-half times as much force to set the gold bullet travelling with the same velocity as the iron one.
